TRAIL 2 IN DEATH OF LYNN GIRL

Today

What Is Worth While?
Blocs of Privilege
Sick of Idleness
Germany in the Fashion

—By Arthur Brisbane—

INTELLECTUAL young ladies in New York are asking, "What is really worth while in this life?" and answering in various ways.

To that question, when woman is concerned, there is only one answer.

The thing worth while in life is to get married, raise a family of children that will repay all your affection when you are old and feel that you have done your share in contributing to the intelligent population of the globe.

Everything else for intelligent young women is mere waste of time, unless one happens to be a genius like a Bronte sister or a Sarah Bernhardt.

And even then she ought to raise a family.

President Hopkins, of Dartmouth College, fears that the bonus might result in an oligarchy with blocs of special privilege. And those blocs might interfere with independence of thought among the people's representatives.

The learned president surely knows that we have several "special privilege blocs" now, and that they have a considerable control on the thoughts of the people's representatives.

One more such bloc wouldn't make any great difference, especially if it should result in distributing, widely, money that must be distributed before the country can start real recovery.

The defeat of Governor La Follette, first for any La Follette in 40 years, delighted Republicans temporarily. They cried, "The country is tired of radicalism," and arranged a little demonstration in Wall Street. Yesterday somebody in that distinguished street thought it over and the demonstration slipped.

Wisconsin wasn't tired of radicalism, the voters were tired of being out of work.

Goethe said: "Against stupidity, the gods themselves fight in vain." Today, against unemployment, the political gods fight in vain.

Herriot, able French prime minister, is suspicious of Germany. What is more, the French government says, "Germany is using United States money in her secret arming program." If so, Germany is using United States money about the same as everybody else in Europe is using it.

Either with money recently borrowed, or money borrowed in the war, not repaid, the most conspicuous countries in Europe keep up their war program.

The fact that they don't pay us enables them to use their money for arms. Germany couldn't borrow from us in war times, and has done her borrowing privately since the war.

In Russia the great automobile factory at Nizhni Novgorod is unable to follow the program and produce 144,000 cars a year. The manager is discharged. A new man put in.

How happy American automobile factories would be if some one would buy and use all the machines they could produce.

No trouble here in production. We can turn out ten million automobiles a year and more.

Our difficulty is with distribution and buying power.

A 12-year-old boy hanged himself in New Jersey yesterday, "because he had been told he must attend the public school instead of continuing at the 'select academy.'"

Some one should have explained to the boy that the public school, better than any other, would give him a better chance of becoming a first-class American.

In the public school a boy meets ALL KINDS OF AMERICANS, learns to understand them and to realize that he is not better than some other boy because his father happens to have a little money.

The public school is the real school.

Russia's government presents a surprise to the League of Nations, particularly to this nation, which seems bound to meddle with the business of everybody else.

In Manchuria, rechristened Manchukuo, Japan plants herself and her ambitions right on the Russian border. Will Russia imitate the meddlesome U. S. A. and tell Japan she mustn't do that?

Not at all. Russia informs Japan that she will presently recognize the government of Manchukuo, which means Japanese rule in Manchuria.

Wise Russia probably thinks it better to let Japan take territory semi-peacefully than compel them to send surplus population on some war expedition.

Mrs. Borah, wife of the distinguished senator from Idaho, is suffering from an illness that had caused alarm and it is announced that the trouble was "parrot fever," caught from a pet parrakeet that died of the disease.

It is impossible to estimate the extent to which animal pets are responsible for spreading disease, especially among children.

Youngman Man For Doherty

N.Y. TO GIVE ROOSEVELT HUGE LEAD

McCooey and Curry, Tammany Chief, Agree After Parley Democrats Will Win

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—After a conference with New York City Democratic leaders, John H. McCooey, Brooklyn leader, said that New York City will give the biggest plurality in its history to Gov. Roosevelt for President.

John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, when asked if he agreed with McCooey's prediction, replied:

"McCooey's usually right."

WONT "KNIFE" HIM

The conference lasted an hour and a half in McCooey's office in Democratic national headquarters. McCooey is Democratic national committeeman for New York. In addition to McCooey and Curry, Democratic leaders from Queens, Richmond, Nassau and Suffolk counties attended.

McCooey's prediction regarding the Rosevelt vote in New York city was in answer to inquiries regarding reports that the Governor would be "knifed" at the polls in the city.

"That is ridiculous," McCooey said. "There is no such thought in the minds of any of the men at the conference today. We are going to roll up the biggest majority New York city ever saw."

WALSH IS PRESENT

Curry's visit to the Democratic national headquarters was the first since the national convention, and it was said to be unusual in that national campaign leaders usually have found it necessary to go to Tammany Hall, rather than have the Tammany leader visit the presidential headquarters.

While at headquarters the city leaders met and talked with a number of the leaders of Governor Roosevelt's campaign committee, including Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts.

During the time Curry was in the conference a number of his Tammany associates called at headquarters and waited to see him. They included John T. Dooling, chairman of the Tammany law committee, and Philip F. Donohue, treasurer of the Tammany executive committee.

Cregg said he was convinced Coogan had nothing to do with the robbery.

Pleads Not Guilty to Arson Threats

Joseph P. Quirk, marathon runner, of Shawmut ter., Framingham, pleaded not guilty in Middlesex superior court today to a secret indictment charging him with threatening to set fire to buildings of the Framingham Lumber Company. He was held in $1000 bail. It is alleged that he wrote an anonymous letter demanding the discharge of a certain employe and threatening the fires if not obeyed.

MANNING, HIS CLOSE ALLY, IS NAMED

G. O. P. Nominee's Political Associate Is Called in Probe of Paid Candidate's Story

James F. Manning, said to be a close political associate of Lieut. Gov. William S. Youngman for the past eight years, and companion to him on many of his political trips, circulated in Cambridge the nomination papers of Patrick H. Doherty, Avon man, who was paid $200 and promised $100 a month to run against Governor Ely on the Prohibition Repeal party platform.

This revelation was made today in the testimony of Dennis J. White, Harvard special policeman, before the State Ballot Law Commission hearing at which the majority of names on Doherty's papers are alleged to have been forged or procured fraudulently.

White said Manning, his nephew, crew coach at Browne & Nichols school, had given his son, Joseph White, Doherty's papers to have

ROMANCE OF BEACH VICTIM REVEALED BY AUTOPSY

Examination of Organs Shows Probable Suicide in Fate of Mary Beary

BULLETIN

Mary Frances Beary, of Lynn, whose body was found yesterday on the West Gloucester marshes, probably killed herself in a spell of despondency induced by approaching motherhood.

Her romance and her apparent suicide by drowning were established by a two-hour autopsy today although the cause of death is not positive and the organs of the victim's body are to be examined by a pathologist.

Meanwhile, state, Gloucester and Lynn police, who were working on a murder theory, suspended their investigation to await the result of a chemical analysis of the organs.

By ARTHUR J. QUINN

An autopsy on the body of Mary Frances Beary, found yesterday on the West Gloucester marshes, today established that she was to have become a mother, but failed to disclose the cause of death.

No indication of surgery was found and the victim's organs will be sent to Harvard Medical School for chemical analysis, it was announced.

Unshaken in their belief that the Lynn young woman was a victim of foul play, police had under surveillance two Lynn men, one believed to have become entangled with her in a romance which she refused to climax with marriage.

Police obtained from a Lynn physician, to whom the girl made two visits a short time before her disappearance on Sept. 6, the name of a middle-aged Lynn man whom she held responsible for her condition.

The doctor suggested that she marry him and the girl's reply, according to police, was:

"I wouldn't marry him if he were the last man on earth."

SHADOW YOUNGER MAN

The other man being shadowed was a young man called "Eddie," with whom the young woman had an appointment on the night of

ROOSEVELT INVITES SEN. JOHNSON TO JOIN HIS FIGHT

CANDIDATE SPRINGS SURPRISE IN HOOVER'S HOME STATE

By ROBERT BARRY
Universal Service Special Correspondent

San Francisco, Sept. 23—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt sprang a political sensation of the first magnitude in California.

He extended a public invitation to Senator Hiram W. Johnson, Republican, to subscribe to the Democratic principles.

The Democratic nominee selected Hoover's home state to make a gesture which was regarded here as the most significant since Hiram Johnson joined Theodore Roosevelt 20 years afo in a revolt against a Republican administration in Washington.

Governor Roosevelt came into California amid popular acclaim, taking for granted that Democrats, with victory around the corner, had sense enough to forget factional differences which developed in the presidential preference primary when he. Speaker John N. Garner and Alfred E. Smith sought the endorsement of California.

He was assured he was not mistaken about that.

MEETS PARTY LEADERS

Governor Roosevelt had a busy day in San Francisco today. The forenoon was given over to meeting local leaders and to private party conferences.

At noon he addressed the Commonwealth Club at the Palace Hotel—speaking of the "New Deal" in politics and in government which he promises the people. He did not intend to make a major speech in San Francisco, but the exigencies of the political situation have compelled him to do so.

Later he will attend a Democratic women's rally at the Palace, and at 8 o'clock he will speak in the Civic Auditorium—from the same platform where 12 years ago he placed Alfred E. Smith in nomination for the presidency. That same Democratic national convention later nominated Roosevelt for vice-president.

ROYAL RECEPTION

Tonight, he turns southward for Los Angeles, and then strikes eastward for the long trip back across the continent.

Governor Roosevelt was accorded a tumultuous greeting in San Francisco. The crowds in Market st. were beyond the control of the police, and automobiles conveying his party proceeded with the greatest difficulty.

The reception was the greatest he had received in any city on his transcontinental trip. The nearest approach to it in modern political campaigns was the greeting to Alfred E. Smith in Boston in 1928.

PRAISES JOHNSON

At Sacramento yesterday afternoon, Gov. Roosevelt subscribed "one hundred per cent" to the doctrine enunciated by Senator Johnson in Modesto the previous night. Roosevelt said:

"In my acceptance speech, I called upon progressive Americans, regardless of party, to join me in this campaign. I have had remarkable response to this invitation. Prominent members and thousands of the rank and file of the other party have declared their belief that the principles I stand for are the principles of genuine American progress.

"I am particularly glad to be here in Sacramento and speak to the townspeople of a man who has done so much to further progressive thought and courageous public action. I refer to your own Senator Hiram Johnson, long a warrior in the ranks of true American progress.

"I rejoice that he said yesterday that a government that thinks only of a favored few and that forgets farmers whose homes are being taken away from them, and toilers whose wages have been decreased to the danger line, 'is unworthy of the name and unfit to govern.'

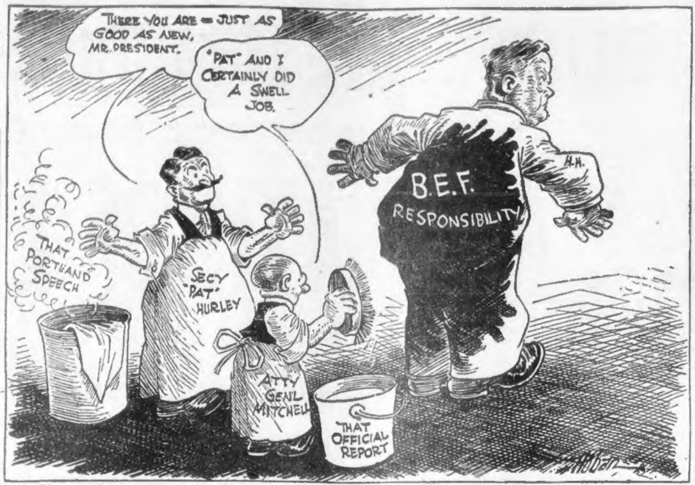
"I believe in this doctrine 100 per cent."

Leaves Train on Plea of Crowd

Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 23 (US) — Although Governor Roosevelt had declared positively he would not leave his train during his stop in California's state capital yesterday, he changed his mind.

With a great crowd out on the street eager to glimpse him, he consented to enter a flag-draped car for a brief trip through the city streets. The Roosevelt car traveled through cheering crowds around the state capitol.

All Washed Up



Observe the busy Clean-Up Twins,
  How cheerfully they toil
With hopeful grins upon their chins
  While spreading on the oil.
With willing hands they clean and press,
  Industrious as bees,
And though at times they make a mess,
  At least they strive to please.

Says Pat: "It is a noble job,
  A vision fair and bright."
Says Mitch: "It makes my bosom throb
  With uncontrolled delight.
It is the finest job, indeed,
  Since Hector was a pup."
And everybody seems agreed
  That Herb is all washed up.

WISCONSIN AND MAINE HELP DEMOCRATS

Votes In Both States Boost the Hopes for Roosevelt to Win in East

By LOUIS SEIBOLD.
(By Universal Service.)

New York, Sept. 23—Successive democratic achievements recently have set the stage for the major offensive to be launched next month. It will be directed at the normally Republican eastern sector.

The splendid showing made by Democrats in Wisconsin on Tuesday was in reality the key to the strategy for which the managers of Governor Roosevelt have been waiting.

They believe that combined with other favorable factors in the West, it will enable them to consolidate the surprising strength developed by the Roosevelt-Garner ticket west of the Alleghanies.

DRIVE IN EAST PLANNED

With this thought in mind, they have already formulated plans for carrying the Democratic challenge into the eastern Republican states, already broken up by the Maine victory.

While the Rosevelt managers did not make much noise about the Wisconsin fight, they attached a great deal more importance to it than appeared in their public comments.

They are now supremely confident that the feud between the La-Follette progressive wing and the Old Guard will drive the bulk of the vote controlled by the former to Gov. Roosevelt, regardless of the working out of the state contests.

247,000 DEMOCRATIC

The basis for this confidence is the tremendous increase in the Democratic vote tabulated in the Wisconsin primaries. In two years it jumped from a negligible 17,000 to more than 160,000. In the presidential primary Roosevelt polled 247,000 votes.

The La Follette's, after holding complete control of political Wisconsin for 40 years, have now been dethroned.

The Democratic party, in the hopeless and helpless minority, usually strung along with the La Follettes. On Tuesday it broke away and set up i nbusiness for itself.

Coming on top of the victory in Maine, the Democratic showing in Wisconsin has done a good deal to stimulate Roosevelt hopes for carrying the East.

His wife left him lying on the floor and ran, clad only in pajamas, to the nearby home of her parents where her companion, Miss Gwendolyn Shinn, had stopped to pay a visit.

Chasing the young woman to the rear yard, police said, she shot Miss Shinn twice and then shot herself.

Members of the family said she had been broding over the death of her mother.

FRENCH REFUTE JAP PLOT TALE

Paris, Sept. 23 (INS)—The French foreign office today authorized a denial of reports that the government had entered into a deal with the United States whereby France is supporting American policy in Manchuria in return for war debt concessions and American support for France in its opposition to German armament demands.

These reports, circulated by the Japanese press, followed the announcement that France does not for the present intend to recognize the Manchurian state of Manchukuo, set up under the protection of the Japanese army.

HOOVER WON BY WOMEN 'WETS'

Glen Falls, N. Y., Sept. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Charles H. Sabin said yesterday the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, of which she is chairman, believes President Hoover's "somewhat liberalized" views on prohibition are partly the result of the organization's attitude. She said:

"We point with modest pride to notable conversions and semi-conversions. We believe action of our organization in standing true to its declaration of principle was a factor in President Hoover's somewhat liberalized point of view in regard to prohibition."

Mrs. Sabin interpreted the Maine primaries as speaking "unmistakably for a change in this odious law."

"You may feel sure," she said, "the American people have made it clear that they are disgusted with the Eighteenth Amendment. The business of translating that disgust into action remains to be done."

Editor Sees Roosevelt Sweeping Western States

Sweeping victory for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket in the normally Republican West is predicted by Walter Davenport, political editor of Collier's Weekly, in today's issue of the magazine.

The article, entitled "Hoover Loses the West," is the result of a non-partisan survey made by Davenport during a personal tour of the territory. He says:

"You'll find nobody of calm, unsubsidized judgment who claims anything but Roosevelt victories in Arizona, Nevada, Colorado, Montana, New Mexico and Oklahoma. The probability is strong that the New Yorker will take the Dakotas, Nebraska and Wyoming."

Davenport finds the anti-Hoover tide just as strong in Washington, Oregon and California, explaining:

"No one knows this better than the forlorn Republican bosses. Behold, them in California, the ebullient Gov. Rolph, the glowering Senator Johnson and the fearful Senator Shortridge, spreading germs of disquiet and apprehension.

"In Washington, a Republican sits in the Governor's chair—Roland H. Hartley—but he is not the brand that fattens regulars.

"In Oregon another irregular Republican governs—Julius L. Meier. The Meier following is quietly, insidiously anti-Hoover. Nowhere in the west is the Hoover ballyhoo weaker than in Oregon."

Davenport finds Hoover has lost his hold on the women's vote because they have become disillusioned by the collapse of the "Hoover Legend," portraying him as a "miracle man." He concludes:

"From President Hoover's own lips came the words that have become the West's most sardonic catch-phrase — 'Just around the corner.'

"Every man to his trade—and the farmer is convinced he knows his better than Wall St. and Mr. Hoover knows theirs. It is exceedingly unhealthy for the leader when the followers become convinced their brains are better."

New York, Sept. 23—Undefeated, indefatigable, Dr. John F. "Jafsie" Condon, aged intermediary in the frantic search a few months ago, is continuing his hunt for the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

Dr. Condon

Stories from Canada of several of the "Lindbergh bills" having turned up caused Dr. Condon to hurry across the border in the hope that the trail might be picked up.

The scene of the night of April 2, when Dr. Condon tossed $50,000 in bills over a cemetery wall is still before "Jafsie," and he has promised not to rest until solution of the mystery is achieved.

Lawrence Tibbett

Enthused over the opera "Emperor Jones," adapted from Eugene O'Neill's play, Tibbett stated he would appear in a lead in the production of the Metropolitan Opera this season.

Tibbett declared that the musical picture, so popular in the past several seasons, has waned in popularity because executives in the film studios do not realize its possibilities.

DRY LAW FACES COURT TEST

Baltimore, Sept. 23 (AP)—The argument that the Eighteenth Amendment is invalid because it never was submitted to the states was to be submitted to the United States district court here today by local attorneys defending an alleged dry law violator.

The attorneys, Morris S. Snyder, John S. L. Yost and Joseph McCormick, have filed a demurrer and motion to quash indictments against their client.

In their brief, it is asserted the Eighteenth Amendment has been void since January 17, 1926, because Section 3 of the amendment reads:

"This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of the several states, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the states by the Congress."

This procedure, they contend, never was literally followed.

GANDHI LEADS PRAYERS BENEATH A MANGO TREE

FRIENDS STRIVE TO TERMINATE DEATH FAST

Mahatma Sends Message to U. S. as a Compromise With Britain Looms

Poona, India, Sept. 23 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi's death fast in protest against the British government's plan to solve the electoral problem for India's lower caste of untouchables may be ended today.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, one of his former lieutenants active in conferences to reach a compromise, visited the Mahatma early today and said afterward he hoped an agreement would be reached before the day is over to enable Gandhi to partake of food again.

The Mahatma himself slept well during the night, lying on a webbed cot under a somewhat shabby mango tree in the yard in front of the jail. When he awoke he conducted his morning prayers as usual.

SHOWS EFFECTS OF FAST

Gandhi's face was drawn and his eyes sunken after more than 7 hours of fasting, but still he had energy enough to dictate many letters and to see a large number of visitors.

Gandhi issued an appeal to the people of India to refrain from fasting with him and insisted that they set about doing all in their power to remove the stigma of untouchability.

His closest friends feel tense, fearing the little evangelist at the last minute might pick out some flaw in the proposed agreement and reject it.

The compromise plan of Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, famous before for his arbitrations of Indian troubles, was the one which, it was understood, was partially accepted.

MESSAGE TO AMERICA

In his appeal to the public today, Gandhi said:

"My message to the American people is that they must not mistake this for a political move. It is a deep spiritual effort, the result of 50 years of constant application to an ideal. It is a penance, and it is seeing as an ideal nothing less than the deliverance of several millions of human beings from a horrible religious serfdom. Its success cannot but have repercussion on the whole of humanity."

Hope Revived to End Strike

Manchester, Eng., Sept. 23 (AP)—Hope for settlement of the textile strike was revived today when the full committee of employers and workers was called to meet for reports from sub-committees on negotiations.

4 CLOSE UPS AT HEARING ON 'HIRED' CANDIDATE

HER NAME FORGED
Mrs. Theresa L. Galagher came from Worcester to testify that the name of her husband, her sister and herself, on the Doherty nomination papers were frauds.

STREET FOREMAN SLEEPS
John Corliss, a foreman in the Worcester Street Department, seemed tired of it all, for he fell asleep during the hearing before the ballot commission. Witnesses indicated that, although Corliss was Patrick H. Doherty's campaign manager, "Youngman-for-Governor" signs graced his auto.

SAME MAN AWAKE—INDIGNANT
The Boston Evening American photographer who caught Corliss asleep was being reprimanded as this scene was snapped by the same photographer. Corliss insisted that the photographer had no right to photograph him while he slept.

PAID FOR WORK
Edward McTiernan, of Worcester, testified a mysterious stranger gave him $35 to distribute petitions for Doherty.

DE VALERA SITS OVER LEAGUE

Geneva, Sept. 23 (INS)—Eamonn de Valera, fiery, fighting President of the Irish Free State, presided over the League of Nations council for the first time today.

Representatives on the council who were skeptical as to the kind of chairman the stormy De Valera would make were agreeably relieved as he directed a strictly orthodox handling of the business.

The council approved a motion by Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, for a continuous survey of slavery in Liberia.

A motion also was approved by which the council will name a representative to contact Washington and make other efforts to effect peace between Paraguay and Bolivia.

Officer Collapses Directing Lineup

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan collapsed today while conducting the lineup at police headquarters and fell from the platform, his head striking the floor. He was injured severely.

Police Halt Maine Girl's Pajama Hiking Tour

Detroit, Sept. 23 (INS)—Clad only in pajamas and a long coat, Sarah Dubue, 18, of Augusta, Me., was arrested on the street today. She said she was hitch-hiking from Augusta to New Mexico, and that her clothes were stolen by two other girl hikers.

"I couldn't let a little thing like that stop me," she explained. Police were trying to find her some clothes.

GOVERNOR SUES TO BLOCK "MA"

Austin, Tex., Sept. 23 (AP)—Gov. R. S. Sterling has filed a new suit in his court fight contesting primary returns by which Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson was declared the Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

Attached to the petition were 1300 pages of exhibits containing the names of approximately 55,000 persons Gov. Sterling's attorneys said cast illegal ballots.

AL. MARSTERS IS HURT IN CRASH

Skidding on the rain-wet pavement of Lexington st., West Newton, today, the automobile of Alton K. Marsters—"Special Delivery" Marsters of Dartmouth football fame—crashed into a pole and sent him and two other riders to Newton hospital.

Marsters, 24, assistant football coach at Beverly high school and a law student at Boston University, where last year he was backfield coach, suffered severe lacerations of the scalp.

Miss Betty M. Selfridge, 22, who said she is a nurse at the Danvers State hospital, sustained lacerations of the chin and forehead.

The alleged driver of Marster's car, James J. Hill, 25, of Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, a salesman, was arrested on charges of drunkenness and drunken driving, after he had been treated at the hospital for lacerations of the head.

In Newton court, Hill made no plea to the charges and the case was continued to October 7, bail of $500 being furnished.

TUG CRIPPLED, ENGINEER HURT

New Bedford, Sept. 23—Clouds of steam rising from the ocean-going tug William G. Howard, off Col. E. H. R. Greene's Round Hill estate, coupled with whistles for assistance, sent other craft speeding to her aid today in the belief that the tug was ablaze.

The tug, with three barges in tow, from New York for New Bedford, was disabled with a broken crankshaft, and the steam was from its racing engine.

Chief Engineer Frank I. Carter of New London, Ct., suffered a sprained arm when he threw the throttle after the accident. The local tugs, J. T. Sherman and John Duff, towed the disabled craft to port.

JAPS WANT U. S. TO MOVE FLEET

Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.

Tokio, Sept, 23 (INS)—Japan intends shortly to drop a hint to Washington that the withdrawal of part of the great American fleet in the Pacific would go a long way toward allaying the growing suspicion among her people that the United States is preparing to make war against them.

This step, International News Service learned, was decided upon after an almost unceasing press campaign against the United States for a month, in which the Japanese newspapers have spread stories of American spy operations, reinforcement of American aviation units in the Philippines and other tales that have excited the public.

Old Lady Luck Got Steve Out of Cell---But Not Jail!

Detroit, Sept. 23 (INS)—Steve Nicola, 33, 220-pound Federal prisoner who barricaded his county jail cell and withstood siege for hours, had yielded today to superior strategy and the lure of the little spotted pasteboards.

Unable to subdue him with tear gas or to get into the barricaded cell, officers released the entire population of the cell block, and handed the prisoners a pack of cards.

"If you must gamble," the turnkeys said, "do it over here in front of Nicola's cell."

In a few minutes, a game was on. Nicola could be seen watching through the bars. Then, came thunderous sounds as he tossed his cell furniture away from the door.

Cautiously, armed with fragments from his shattered washbowl he came out. Turnkeys overpowered him and took him to a psychopathic ward.

The prisoners were summarily herded back to their cells. And far into the morning, wails came from the cell block:

"Oh! oh! oh! and me with three aces!"

Fraud Case Against Crissinger Dropped

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—An indictment charging Daniel R. Crissinger, former governor of the Federal Reserve board, with using the mails to defraud, was nolle prossed today at the instance of the justice department.

Crissinger, Marion O., attorney, was indicted in 1929 while an official of the F. H. Smith Co., investment brokers.

BOMB AND GAS TOWN IN ILLINOIS MINES WAR

BUCKLEY ASKED TO QUIT 'DEM' STATE TICKET

Leaders Would Have the Hyde Park Man Yield in Favor of Santosuosso

By BERNARD F. DOHERTY

In the interest of racial balance for the State ticket, certain prominent Democrats are trying to prevail upon former State Senator John F. Buckley of Hyde Park, who won the nomination for secretary of state in Tuesday's primary, to withdraw voluntarily.

The Democratic State committee, in the event that Buckley consents to make the sacrifice, will undoubtedly substitute the name of Dr. Joseph Santosuosso of the North End. Santosuosso was runner-up in the auditorship nomination contest.

As long as there were two Cooks on the G. O. P. State ticket to balance the two Hurleys on the Democratic end, no political capital on this point could be made. But now that the Democratic ticket also has two Buckleys, one for attorney-general and the other for secretary of state, it is felt in Democratic circles that the lineup is open to criticism from outside and within

LABOR TORTURE CHARGE HUSHED

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—A statement charging the War Department with an effort to hush up accusations that Negro workers on the Mississippi flood control project "were treated like peons and slaves" was issued today by Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, on his return from Washington.

White, who accompanied the association's investigator, Miss Helen Boardman, when she testified yesterday before Brig.-Gen. Pillsbury, scored exclusion of the press from the hearing.

"It was plain that the War Department in closing tried to keep from the American people news of the horrors now going on the Mississippi," said White.

TEAR GAS USED TO OPEN WAY FOR WORKERS

Soldiers Lead Them Into Collieries by Breaking Up Picket Lines

Taylorville, Ill., Sept. 23 (AP)—Tear gas and smoke bombs of the militia burst in the streets of Langleyville today, clearing the way for union miners to go to work through pickets of a new miners' union who refuse to abide by the new $5 wage scale.

Machine guns commanded the street from each end of the village. In platoons of six, bayonets fixed, the guards marched into town, tossing gas bombs ahead to clear the way.

The pickets converged in small numbers overnight from nearby towns. Many residents joined them in the streets. As dawn came, the soldiers marched in, warning that there would be no loitering or picketing.

Roads into Langleyville from every direction were patrolled by the guardsmen to make the way safe for the 200 miners to go back to the mine.

Langleyville is a mining town that recruits its 200 miners from its own residents and nearby towns, notably Kincaid, headquarters of the new miners' union, and Taylorville, where bombs last Sunday damaged the offices of the United Mine Workers and of the Taylorville Daily Breeze. Troops were sent here after the bombings.

Ex-Official Guilty of Editor's Murder

Shelby, Mont., Sept. 23 (AP)—Frank J. Nevills, aged former town treasurer of Sweet Grass, Mont., was convicted today by a jury of the murder of A. J. Hedrix, Sweet Grass newspaper editor, last May 19. The jury recommended life imprisonment. He pleaded self-defense.

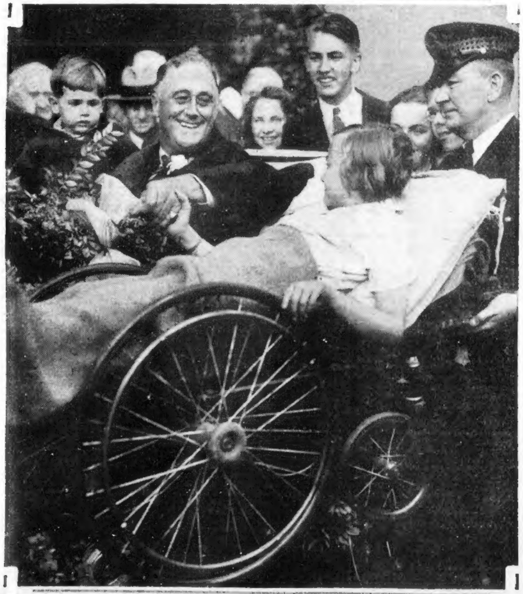
REAL SYMPATHY FROM ONE WHO KNOWS



Because Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, himself, waged an heroic fight against the terrible ravages of infantile paralysis, it meant a great deal when he went to Seattle's Orthopedic Hospital to cheer up little Miss Melody Bresina and her fellow-sufferers. And if you think he did not succeed, look at that smile. (International News Photo.)

MOOSE TICKETS SENT TO HOME OF DAVIS

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

New York, Sept. 23 (INS)—A package of charity ball tickets [illegible] to be lottery tickets was sent to U. S. Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania, director general of the Loyal Order of Moose, at his home in Pittsburgh, it was brought out today at his trial on charges of violation of the federal lottery laws.

Fred W. Jones, secretary of Davis, signed the receipt for the package, it was testified by a Pittsburgh truckman.

SENT FROM PHILADELPHIA

The package was consigned to Davis from Philadelphia, where the tickets for the 1930 Moose hall were printed and distributed.

The package, addressed to J. J. Davis and marked as containing [illegible] was delivered at the Davis home [illegible] on October 4, 1930.

This was intended to be the most important evidence presented by the government to date.

The defense contends that Senator Davis had no knowledge of the [illegible] of the charity balls and was unaware that prizes were given in connection with it.

RECEIVED BY JONES

The government alleges that Davis was the guiding hand in the 1930 and 1931 charity balls and profited personally from it to the extent of $172,000.

The prosecution claims that Fred W. Jones, who signed the receipt for the package of tickets when it was delivered at the Davis lodge, was the financial agent for the senator.

Chief defense counsel Charles J. Margiotti brought out that Davis was not represented as having seen the package of ticket books.

PUBLIC PAYS WHILE POLICE AND DOLE BOARD SQUABBLE

The "thorough investigation" of welfare faking had degenerated today into a political dispute over the first 500 cases, while the public's money continued to stream out to forty times that number, with waste and fraud unchecked.

The situation was perfectly deadlocked and wrapped about with words and mutual criticism as the welfare board responded to the police commissioner's thrust with a parry and a haymaking swing toward the chin.

As far as the taxpayers are concerned both blows missed. Commissioner Hultman stands his ground. So does the welfare board. The spectators have suddenly discovered it was a no-decision contest.

Today's developments found several hundred more words being shoveled into the flames.

CALLS CASES WEAK

Corporation Counsel Silverman, who is on the welfare department side, said:

"Police Commr. Hultman's report is based upon a misconception of the facts and an erroneous understanding of the law.

"If the statement of the police commissioner—that 76 cases may possibly be criminally prosecuted is correct—then in my opinion it is his duty to immediately make application for warrants for the arrest of these offenders.

"But if the 76 cases are similar to the five glaring examples he has submitted, then it is apparent why he has refrained. The police commissioner well knows that he could not obtain warrants, much less convictions."

Chairman Hecht of the welfare overseers had another say. Once more he charged that Commr. Hultman's words were more alarming than his facts, again denied waste and once more promised to thoroughly go over the cases cited by the police.

HULTMAN STANDS PAT

Welfare board criticism of his report on welfare frauds was met by Commissioner Hultman with a statement through his secretary that he would stand by his findings.

The police report states that out of 500 cases 76 warrant criminal prosecution while in 278 others there is ground for prosecution in that the city is paying doles needlessly.

To these charges the welfare board retorted that the police commissioner's report is full of fallacies and the board ridiculed "extraordinary doctrine" pronounced by the police head with regard to some features of city aid.

DENY CRIMINAL TAINT

The welfare overseers took up Comm. Hultman's five typical examples of city aid and sought to prove that four of the five were entirely free of criminal taint or irregularities while the fifth possibly contained some element of wrong.

Bernard P. Scanlan issued the police commissioner's statement in reply to the welfare board's assertions.

"The commissioner," Scanlan said, "is perfectly willing to stand by the report as he made it.

"There is no necessity, in his opinion, for the retraction or amendment of anything contained in the report. The report followed only the most careful investigation and study by Commissioner Hultman."

The commissioner's report declared that 76 of the 500 cases warranted prosecution, and that in 70 cases it appeared that the 'destitute parent law' could be invoked. Hultman declared he found 218 cases in which the recipient had relatives, many of whom were able to assist, but no indication the welfare board had investigated ability of those who might be called on for such support.

PROPERTY OWNERS AIDED

His investigation found 2[illegible] aid receivers who owned real estate, 18 with bank accounts and 3[illegible] who were non-residents.

He listed the irregularities as follows:

Aid not received by applicant	22
Aid not received by recipient	6
No such person	8
False and incorrect addresses	81
Recipient dead	6
Discrepancy in amount of aid reported	133

In addition Hultman scored the welfare department for its inaccurate and incomplete records. He declared that under the present system two years would be necessary to complete the police probe.

RECORDS INCOMPLETE

He recommended a new registration of all aid recipients and that each case be examined by visitors who have not previously passed on the case. He pointed out that the discrepancies could probably eventually be explained. He added he felt it his duty to point out the conditions as chaotic and presenting opportunities for fraud.

He stated that cooperation had been given him by the welfare department but pointed out that incomplete records had been furnished in many cases. These he [illegible] as follows:

No application	9
Affidavit not signed by applicant	17
No affidavit	203
No recent visitor's report	190
No record of vote of overseers	35
No pay cards	6
Incomplete pay cards	40

The welfare board's reply states that a "thorough examination of the commissioner's report indicates [illegible] valuable information, which will assist us in our cooperative endeavor."

3000 AT RITES FOR SLAIN BOY

South River, N. J., Sept. 23 (AP) The body of 9-year-old Walter Rojek, killed by a bullet Monday in a riot that marked the climax of the needleworkers strike, was carried through the streets of South River today in a funeral procession of nearly 3000 persons.

Twenty little girls, dressed in white, relieved one another in groups of six to carry the casket from St. Mary's Roman Catholic church to St. Mary's Polish cemetery in East Brunswick township.

Behind the casket walked most of the 1776 women and girl strikers. About 1500 men and women of workers' delegations were present from other cities.

JAIL MINISTER AS POISON PEN WRITER

Rutland, Vt. Sept. 23.—Unable to furnish bail of $25,000 Rev. William R. Shaw, former pastor of the Advent Christian Church here, was lodged in jail today charged with writing "unprintable" letters about a young teacher, who recently became a bride.

Rev. Shaw was jailed as security for a suit brought by the bride, Mrs. Mable White Vigneaux, former University of Vermont student, graduate of Moody Bible Institute in Chicago and student of voice culture.

FRIENDLY WITH PASTOR

He was arrested on a "body writ" that is literally an attachment on his body. The process was used according to counsel for Mrs. Vigneaux because no attachable asset of the minister could be found.

Rev. Shaw was arrested yesterday as he drove through here with his wife. He is now pastor of the Advent Christian Church at Hebron, N. Y.

Mrs. Vigneaux, before her marriage to Maurice Vigneaux, a cafe chef, was friendly with Rev. and Mrs. Shaw and was a member of the church Rev. Shaw headed.

Immediately after her marriage a few weeks ago the letters charged to the minister were received by Vigneaux, the bride's mother and the landlady of the couple.

DENIES WRITING LETTER

In the suit of the bride they were termed malicious, false, scandalous and defamatory. The deputy United States marshal who served the writ termed them unprintable.

While his aged wife sought friends in Hebron to put bail for her husband, Rev. Shaw denied from his cell in Rutland county jail that he had written the letters.

COOP LODGER IS ORDERED FREED

Roger R. Glover, retired lumber dealer, of Pine Ridge rd., Wellesley Hills, was ordered released from Medfield State Hospital today by Judge Pierce in the supreme court.

His daughter, Mrs. Maude M. Fogg, had him committed a month on the ground that he acted strangely and slept in the henhouse. Herbert B. Moses, wealthy Weston resident, filed the petition that caused Glover's release.

Dr. Karl K. Holt, superintendent of the hospital, testified that the Glover's son-in-law found a revolver in Glover's coat. He recommended keeping the patient in the hospital.

"I find custody of this man is unnecessary," said Judge Pierce. "I find he can be released with safety to himself and the public."

PRIEST HITS AT AID METHODS

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 23 (AP).—Rev. John O'Grady, national secretary of the Conference of Catholic Charities, today expressed "grave concern" over what he termed the breakdown of public relief in many sections of the country.

Father O'Grady was one of the leaders of a special [illegible] of diocesan directors of Catholic Charities held here [illegible] in advance of the 18th annual conference of Roman Catholic Charities which opens Sunday.

"Public officials in many places are unwilling to avail themselves of the experiences of private social workers in the administration of relief," he said.

"They have in many instances organized systems of relief that are a disgrace to American standards. Many are more interested in economy than in conserving human values."

LIBERAL CHIEFS MAY QUIT OVER TRADE POLICY

London, Sept. 23 (AP)—Excitement ran high in political circles today because of the belief that Liberal ministers will resign when the MacDonald cabinet meets tomorrow to consider tariff agreements of the Ottawa Imperial Conference.

Appeals will be made to the proponents of free trade to remain in the government despite their antagonism toward the Ottawa measures.

The flurry centers around Sir Herbert Samuel the home secretary. He informed the executive of the Liberal party that Liberal ministers had agreed on the action they will take tomorrow. He did not say what this would be.

If Sir Samuel leads the Liberals out, an awkward situation will face MacDonald. It is the general opinion, however, that if Sir Herbert resigns, he will support general policies.

Marry Charlie Chaplin? I Should Say Not!

By MARGARET LANE

New York, Sept. 23 (INS)—So it all comes out at last. Miss Paulette Goddard, the [illegible] platinum blonde who arrived in New York from Hollywood yesterday, refusing with coy reticence either to affirm or deny that she was engaged to Charlie Chaplin, admitted today that the answer was not really "Yes, no, well [illegible]" but an [illegible] "No!"

It was really not her fault. Mr. Chaplin who, as she explained yesterday in the intervals of having her photograph taken in pajamas, "is an absolute recluse," was seen going places with the blonde Miss Goddard and when he kissed her goodbye at the train "everybody had to start this stupid Cupid stuff."

The news of that kiss having gone before her, she was met in New York by reporters and cameras and at first refused to say yes or no to rumors of an engagement. Today she entered an absolute denial.

The [illegible] blonde is a healthy looking person with sturdy shoulders and a neat waist and the prettiest little golden brown back we ever saw. Her hair is silvery white but she is on the verge of retiring to Tahiti for a couple of months to grow it out to its natural color.

"Natural brown hair is the best after all," she said candidly. "Platinum blonde hair is a great nuisance to keep."

REJECTED SUITOR IS HUNTED IN GLOUCESTER DEATH MYSTERY

Sept. 6, according to her employer, John Crowley, 54, of Evelyn st., Lynn, for whom she was a housekeeper.

Crowley too had made a proposal of marriage to Miss Beary, he revealed, but he said he was unaware of her love affair.

Medical Examiner Ira Hull and Dr. H. C. Carvell of Gloucester performed the autopsy, which lasted more than two hours. Dr. Carvell said:

"Our examination shows that the girl had become involved in an unfortunate romance two or three months ago. The organs are to be sent to Harvard. We cannot say anything definite at this time. There was nothing to indicate that any illegal surgery had been performed or attempted."

Dr. Hull, leaving the Cherry Hill cemetery, where the examination was made, stated:

GAVE NAME OF MAN

"There were no bruises or wounds on the head. We cannot say anything further at this time. We are leaving here for the police station to confer with City Marshal Daniel Casey and State Detective William Murray and if they agree I shall issue a complete statement."

Whether illegal surgery might have been the death cause even though it is not now apparent he would not say.

At least one member of the girl's own family had suspected this as the cause for her disappearance, police were told, and the authorities themselves held the opinion the girl may have met her death in or near Lynn and been carried to the spot where she was found.

The Lynn doctor whom the girl visited told police he first saw him on Aug. 25, when he did not know her true condition, and again on Sept. 2, when he told her she was to become a mother and she gave him the name of the man.

City Marshal Casey had previously stated that if the case is established as murder at least two men and possibly three might be involved.

CHUM IS SURPRISED

Violet Spagnardi, 21, of Essex st., Lynn, the dead girl's most intimate friend, said today she was unaware of Miss Beary's love affair although she saw her for several hours each day.

"Mary told me when she first went to work for Mr. Crowley that he proposed marriage to her but she turned him down. She said she did not care for him enough to marry him.

"I was with Mary every day from 1 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when she would go home to get Crowley's supper, and then she would come back to my house to stay from 7 to about 11 at night.

"I did not know she knew any other men besides Crowley. She did know an Eddie—an Eddie Murray, but he died six years ago.

"I last saw her at 11 o'clock the night before she disappeared. She took a car from my house to go to Crowley's house about a mile away. As I look back upon what occurred that evening, I remember that she said, 'I'm going to start all over again Tuesday.'

"I asked her what she meant and she didn't answer. I did not know she was to become a mother but about two weeks before she disappeared she asked me questions about girls who got in trouble, although she did not indicate she had herself in mind.

SURE SHE WAS SLAIN

"After her disappearance, members of her family came to me and asked me if I could help locate her. Her brother begged me to take him where she was in order that he might take her home. He believed she had had an illegal operation and up to the time she was found I think members of her family felt I knew where she was.

"I have been to their house today and they know I know nothing of where she was or what happened. I believe there was illegal surgery in or near Lynn, possibly Swampscott, that Mary died as a result of it and that her body was transported in an auto at night to where it was found by someone familiar with the location.

"I know she would not commit suicide. I am sure she was murdered."

The girl's employer Crowley, who is a widower and an old friend of her family, [illegible] which sent them seeking [illegible] Eddie Crowley conferred at length with the authorities regarding the death of his [illegible] [illegible]

At his [illegible] September [illegible] phone call from Eddie [illegible] a date to meet [illegible] at 7 [illegible] night at Central [illegible] [illegible] to have [illegible] friend for a friend of Eddie.

The telephone [illegible] in the date was [illegible] Miss Beary [illegible] after 3 o'clock on the [illegible] and her farewell to the caller was:

"All right, Eddie, be sure and be there. I have tonight off and don't forget to bring another boy along."

An old tool house in Cherry Hill cemetery, Gloucester, was the scene of the autopsy [illegible] It [illegible] and three large electric lamps were [illegible] [illegible] worked.

[illegible] besides the medical examiners were State Detectives Murray and Griffin, Sergt. Walter Foley of [illegible] Sergt. Arthur P. [illegible] [illegible] William M. [illegible] of Lynn.

SEARCH MARSH AGAIN

The marsh where the remains were found [illegible] southern [illegible] were searched [illegible] Miss Beary [illegible] her [illegible] in the marsh grass or in the waters of the creek which was [illegible]

The [illegible] creek are seldom visited. There is a vast area of desolate marsh [illegible] grown by [illegible] and cut through by the creek [illegible] mosquito [illegible] which is traversed by few persons.

The spot where the body was [illegible] yards from a narrow [illegible] roadway which [illegible] an old barn. From this road up the [illegible] of the barn the prints of a man's shoes were found at intervals leading to and from the place where the body [illegible] Between the place and the roadway is a barbed wire fence over which [illegible] were [illegible] the body [illegible] have been lifted.

The road [illegible] north from an [illegible] a mile distant which in turn leads off the main road between Gloucester and West Gloucester.

NOT SUICIDE, THEY SAY

The state detectives joined City Marshal Casey in the investigation ten minutes after the dead girl's brother Thomas identified the body. [illegible] were [illegible] to [illegible] of the girl's death by Dist. Atty. Gray.

Although a motive for self-destruction [illegible] have [illegible] in the [illegible] police [illegible] she did not commit suicide.

The [illegible] disinfectant [illegible] tightly [illegible] near her body could not have [illegible] by a [illegible] [illegible] according to Dr. Hull because anyone who drank from it could not have replaced the stopper so swiftly, agonizing as the particular poison [illegible]

There is no evidence the body was ever in the [illegible] water, he added.

A white bag [illegible] found a short [illegible] from the body is believed to have been [illegible] by a summer [illegible] and [illegible] to the [illegible] where it was found by the creek water.

The girl, Miss Beary, was to have met September [illegible] state [illegible] [illegible] questioning [illegible] said:

"I waited for Mae until 9 o'clock that night. I thought that she had been delayed in getting off. She told me during the afternoon that she would bring a boy friend along and we would have a party. She didn't show up and I went home.

CALLED BROTHER

"I called her place the next day and the people there told me she hadn't returned. I was worried. I called her brother and told him about her not meeting me and that is all I heard of it until today."

State Officer M[illegible] [illegible] with [illegible] the [illegible] for the present.

Miss Beary was in poor health and despondent for several months prior to her disappearance, a brother, John Beary, of Clarendon ave., Lynn, revealed today.

He said that she has made her home with the family at Clarendon ave. [illegible] mother, Mrs. Bridget Beary, himself, another brother, Thomas, who identified the body, and a sister, Katherine. She has two other sisters who are married. They are Mrs. Elizabeth Wattman of Clarendon ave. and Mrs. Dora Lovely, of Chatham st.

Their father, Timothy Beary, a religious worker, died a year ago and the shock was a severe one to the entire family, the brother disclosed. It seemed to affect the dead girl more than any of the others, he declared.

He said for the last [illegible] months before her disappearance she had been employed as a domestic in the home of John H. Crowley, stationary engineer, of Evelyn st., Lynn.

CONSIDERED MARRIAGE

Miss Beary was a housekeeper for Crowley through choice rather than economic necessity.

"She left the house about 5 p. m. on Sept. 6," he said. "She said she'd be back and for me not to do the dishes and I left the key for her to get in in the usual place."

He was surprised to learn she had been seriously in love and revealed that he had considered honoring her with his name and had even discussed this idea with her.

"I said, 'If you are a good housekeeper and pleasant to have around, and I find that I can get married, you will have the first show.' She seemed willing and said, 'I want to marry someone and I like the house.'"

AUTOPSY THAT BARED GIRL'S LOVE SECRET

SERGT. FOLEY DR. CARVELL DR. HULL

Gloucester officials about to perform an autopsy today in a tool house in Cherry Hill Cemetery, Gloucester, on the body of Mary Frances Beary, found on a lonely marsh. The autopsy revealed the tragedy of a girl who had loved not wisely, but too well, and the investigators see in it a motive that might show the girl was slain. Above are Sergt. Wallace L. Foley, Dr. Hanford Carvell and Dr. Ira B. Hull, district medical director. (Staff photo.)

100 MILLION IN NEW LOSSES BY INSULL

Chicago, Sept. 23 (INS).—New losses approximating $100,000,000 were today added to the staggering reverses suffered by Insull investors as the result of filing of the receivers' report on the Corporation Securities Company.

Corporation Securities, a $150,000,000 concern founded by Samuel Insull just before the stock market crash, was characterized in the report of the receivers, Patrick Lucey and Raymond F. McNally, as "hopelessly insolvent."

Listing indebtedness amounting to nearly $15,500,000 to New York and Chicago banks, the report showed that the only asset on hand was $30,725 in cash proceeds from the sale of board of education tax anticipation warrants. This shortage of funds hampers the work of auditing, the receivers said.

In making public a list of "preferred clients," which contained the names of such prominent figures as Owen D. Young and Gerard Swope, board chairman and president, respectively, of the General Electric Co., the state's attorney said no decision had been reached as to what use he would make of this information.

The insiders were permitted purchase at less than half the market price a total of [illegible]0,000 shares of the common stock.

Names on the list include Joseph E. Otis, vice chairman of the board of the Central Republic Bank; L. E. Myers, president of the board of education; George A. Cooke, formerly state supreme court justice.

Dole Receiver in Court for Talk on Common

To a gaping audience of [illegible]0 or more, Uriah H. Lloyd, 60, of Hyde Park, extolled from a Boston Common bench today a new invention designed, he said, to illuminate the universe.

One of his audience, skeptical and not [illegible], was Patrolman James Cusick of La Grange st. station.

Cusick lacked enough romance to escort Lloyd before Judge John Duff in Municipal Court on the comparatively drab charge of making a speech without a permit.

Then Lloyd was discovered to be a welfare aid recipient.

In view of this Judge Duff said he would let him off with a warning to pick some other place to talk about his invention.

N. Y. ELECTION STAY GRANTED

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—A peremptory mandamus staying the board of elections from making any preparations for a mayoralty election this fall was signed today by Supreme Court Justice John E. McGeehan in conformity with a recent decision that no election for mayor should be held this year.

The order was signed in the suit of a taxpayer brought on behalf of Mayor Joseph V. McKee, successor to James J. Walker, to continue McKee in office until January 1, 1934.

Presiding Justice Edward R. Finch of the appellate division has fixed Tuesday for arguments on an appeal, but notice of appeal has been held in abeyance pending filing of the mandamus.

CUT HER HAIR; IS DIVORCED

It was hardly her idea of the mode at the moment, but Mrs. Sarah Morrell of Paris st., East Boston, wore a skull cap in public at one time in her married life, she told Judge Joseph F. McCloon today in Suffolk divorce court.

The reason for Mrs. Morrell's peculiar and hardly modish feminine headgear, she explained, was that her husband, Anthony Morrell, had cut her hair and then shaved her head in a moment of pique.

Anthony, who now is hibernating at Concord reformatory in a little matter of a stolen automobile, according to his wife, was found by her, shortly after their marriage in 1924, sitting on their doorstep with his arms around a blonde.

When the wife remonstrated, the husband punched her in the mouth, Mrs. Morrell charged.

HARRIMAN SEES BUSINESS GAIN

Washington, Sept. 23 (INS).—Henry I. Harriman of Boston, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, reported to President Hoover today that conditions are decidedly better, although nobody knows how long it will last.

The President had summoned Harriman to ask him to have the Chamber do everything possible to help the spread of work movement.

"In my section—New England—things are much improved," Harriman said. "There are 100,000 textile workers back on the job today who were not at work two months ago."

CALENDAR AND SEASON IN STEP AS FALL TAKES POSSESSION

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

R. E. ROGERS

YESTERDAY WAS THE FIRST day of fall and for once the season and the calendar seem to coincide. For Nature does not move with equal step. Some times she hurries, sometimes she lags so that you doubt the printed page. Down here by the sea she is inclined to hesitate, as if loath to let summer go. Yet here too she has her signs and her signals, warning us of what is to come

On higher ground and further from the sea she hurries. As long ago as August 31, that charming essayist of "The Nation" who calls himself The Drifter commented a little sadly on the coming of autumn up in the hills. In the Berkshires, perhaps, or in the foothills of the White Mountains or perhaps by an inland lake in Maine.

* * *

Seasons Change Over Night

"Fall has come to New England. And the Drifter, who watches the seasons as jealously as any farmer, happened to be there when the miracle occurred. On Tuesday summer was in full bloom. Indolent breezes moved over the meadows and up the hill. The voice of the crow was mild in the mild air. [illegible] for one sprig of unmotivated red the permanance of summer was indisputable . . . On Wednesday a strange cool breeze came up the hill and did not stop . . . became brisk and purposeful. It whisked through the old house like a new broom sweeping out summer . . . and goldenrod and milkweed, though they had been there before, seemed suddenly to crowd the hill-sides. The late rich sunlight was drained of summer; the shadows that lay across it were long and cool; in the evening to the north the hills were as purple as asters . . . The sun is still hot in New England. But the days are like mountain days—the sun seems hotter because the shadows are full of north wind. Inside, the fireplace that has yawned useless all summer becomes indeed a place for fire, a refuge from the shivering air."

It is a shame to mutilate the Drifter's beautiful prose. But that is enough to show how Nature holds various converse with various people. Down here by the North Shore, the only resemblance is that we, too, feel like having a hard wood fire of nights. Fall has come, indeed, but in quite different fashion. Down here Labor Day is only a date on a calendar. The sun is as hot, the air as quiet, the sea as blue as it was before. Only some timely magic suddenly drains our streets and beaches of summer boarders dressed in summer clothes and small boys and girls dressed in bath suits all day long.

September might be the loveliest month of the year, if people were only here to know it. But they rush homeward punctually and, I suppose, begin to dig their fall coats out of the moth balls.

Down here Autumn comes from the sea. Not with Shelley's west wind—for that is an English autumn—but with Longfellow's sea-born gales:

> When descends on the Atlantic
> The gigantic
> Storm wind of the Equinox . . .

* * *

Garden Sacrifice to the Storms

We have had two of these in the past two weeks. One a nor-easter, the other a sou-easter The first came with two full days of hard blowing. There was no rain, but all night it blew and a whole day and another night again. And all next day there was enough wind to keep the billows piling whitely over the Breakwater and boiling over the circle of sunken rocks called Avery's Ledge and drowning the little rock just off our beach where the gulls roost.

When it passed the garden looked as if an army had passed. Cosmos and gladioluses—(which is correct, no matter what the Latinists say)—and dahlias and all the tall flowers were bent and trampled by the wind and all discolored by the salt spray.

And hardly had they begun to stand upright again when the rain came, sweeping up along the coast from the southeast, beginning before the daylight, beating down all the day, reaching its greatest fury after darkness came. And with it a wind, less strong than the dry gale but strong enough to complete the ruin of the poor garden.

That is how we know that fall has come. Today it is as bright and brisk and warm a day as you would want. But the sky is a paler blue than the summer sky and the sea is a darker blue than the summer sea. The wind is brisk again today and the white caps are kicking up in tentative fashion as if not quite able to make up their minds to turn into rollers. I hope they don't. The last rollers swept such a monstrous mass of kelp and weed upon the little beach that the man with the dump-cart was days in clearing it away. And before it was all gone it confected such a stench as I have never smelled before. It still lingers on the air, something a bit stranger than the smell of beach-tossed seaweed when the wind is ripe, and that smell more than anything else warns us that the summer is gone.

* * *

Even the Moon Changes Habit

There is another sign. All summer long the moon, when there was a moon, has risen behind Bearskin Neck. Even that is pleasant enough, but it is not quite the same thing as rising over water. Now as summer wanes, and the calendar and the fireplace and the wind warns us that fall is upon us, the moon has in some queer, mysterious way of her own, slid around from the east to the north just enough so that these nights we see her rise over water, huge, red, oblate, with black streaks of cloud across her face . . . not a summer moon any longer, but the moon of harvest and a stormy harvest at that.

At twilight we speculate about frost, but none comes. Too near the water, probably. And if it be particularly brisk we search the heavens for the Northern Lights, never particularly strong so far south and this summer quite imperceptible. And we try to eke out the remains of the hard wood for the few days left to us and listen eagerly to the late radio that tells us if it will be cold tomorrow.

In a day or two I shall suddenly find my little room full of boxes and will be told that the books must be packed and the papers sorted—how in the name of goodness do things manage to accumulate so in one short summer?—and get ready to go back to town. There will be week-ends, perhaps, to see if the grapes have ripened and to dig up bulbs and to do whatever it is that the women folk do in closing up a house. But those won't help much. It's back to hats and neckties and store pants . . . and the long, long road of the winter job.

Today Wheeller was in Middlesex Superior Court on a charge of drunkenness. He pleaded guilty and Cambridge police recommended probation, on the ground that he had reformed, that he is working and that he is soon to become a father.

The case was heard on an appeal from a lower court sentence imposed early in June last.

Jackson Co-Eds Insulted; Exam Was Just Too Easy

Freshmen co-eds at Jackson are, to use their own word, are "darned mad" today after taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test required of all new students by the combined education departments of Tufts and Jackson.

Not that the examination was difficult. [illegible] It was too easy, meant to underrate their intelligence and insult their common sense, according to the furious girls.

When the Boston Evening American reporter happened in on [illegible] of them in a room at Metcalf Hall having a late breakfast of toast, marmalade, coffee and cigarettes, the air was loud with protests and arguments about the [illegible] exam.

AND ARE THEY MAD!

"What do they think we are, morons?" was the query of Mary Bartlett of Claremont, N. H., as she bit furiously into a slice of toast.

"Why any grammar school child could have passed that," Edith Langlois of Somerville chimed in.

Rose Herbfield from Lawrence admitted that there was one problem that stumped her.

"The one where you had to arrange the words, running, crawling, standing, lying and sitting in the right consecutive order. I don't know whether a baby crawls before it sits or sits first. How should I?"

MEN NOT BOTHERED

[illegible] that they were [illegible] but thought the whole thing was childish and [illegible].

Among the [illegible] pretty simple but they were [illegible] enough of [illegible] complaining about their [illegible] knowledge."

Prof. Edwin D. [illegible] the department of [illegible] that despite the [illegible] of the [illegible] the exam [illegible] beneficial to his work.

"We are attempting to discover a type of test that will really pick out the students most qualified to enter college. The straight academic examination such as the college board is not the right type," he said.

IT'S DONE WITH PICTURES

"These aptitude tests are no laughing matter. The girls may think it is stupid to have to fill in blanks in a sentence like 'When tired he was taciturn, when —— he was ——.' But that is the sort of question that tests the average intelligence. It's a better criterion than declining a Latin noun."

Today's test for the [illegible] college was more than words. Part of it was arranging jumbled pictures so that they told a [illegible] story. One example was a set of four pictures: first, a man putting out a fire, second, fire engines whizzing through the streets, third, smoke coming from a house and a boy running down the front steps and, at the box pulling the alarm box. They should have been arranged in [illegible] consecutively.

Sangster to Retire

James Sangster, custodian of the Milton Town Hall since 1899, will retire from duty Oct. 1 after 33 years of service.

CALLAN TRUST PACT DRAWN

An instrument of trust, with Mrs. Mary Hemenway Callan as beneficiary and with several hundred thousand dollars worth of securities in trust for the Callan family, was drawn up in 1929 it was testified today at the Callan hearing.

Atty. Frank Lynch, counsel for the State St. Trust Co., testified before Judge Frank [illegible] Deland as master that he drew the trust document in November, following the stock market crash in which the Rev. John J. Callan was badly squeezed.

The hearing is on a petition by Mrs. Callan to have her divorced husband evicted from the Wellesley estate which forms part of the alleged trust fund, and on petition by the minister to block eviction and have him declared a part owner.

The Rev. Mr. Callan, former rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Wellesley, testified he now has an equity of about $2000 in a margin account with his broker, whereas in 1929 he said this equity amounted to $1,000,000. He said he had started with $20,000 and had increased the amount so that it showed that much profit.

The home was bought for $15,000. After Mrs. Callan obtained a divorce last spring Callan occupied the home with his two children by his first marriage. Recently he was besieged in the home by agents of Mrs. Callan who claimed she owned the property.

The fine was imposed last week and appealed. Kerr withdrew the appeal today.

Another fine of $75, for failure to pay the prevailing wage scale to other employes, is still appealed.

The statement that veterans are a menace cannot be proven by Mr. Dennett or anyone else.

The main idea of the National Economy League according to their own admissions is to reduce governmental costs, and these can stand reducing. But out of the staggering total of costs, they can only figure a possible reduction of 1-60th of the total.

"If the so-called 50 great minds of the country, of which Mr. Dennett is one, have so miserably failed to lead us out of the slough of despond, in which we have wallowed for three years, then why not turn the problem over to the alleged '11 year-old mentality group.'

GIRL SEIZED ON SHIP IN GAMBLE

In a move unparalleled in the activities of federal officers here, customs agents boarded the steamer Newfoundland, docked in the harbor preparatory to sailing tomorrow to Liverpool, and arrested a stewardess for violation of the lottery act.

Miss Teresa Rown, 28, of Dublin, Ireland, taken into custody by Customs Officer Thomas F. Flanagan, will appear before Judge James A. Lowell in federal court charged with importing about 300 lottery tickets for the October drawing of the Irish Free State Hospitals Sweepstakes in Ireland.

Assistant Federal Attorney John J. Walsh contended that agents for the sweepstakes have been using stewards and stewardesses as importers of the lottery tickets, thereby circumventing the ban recently placed on the sale of the tickets in this country.

Flying Tackle Halts Boy's Flight

A janitor's agility in making a flying tackle resulted in the arrest of Charles P. O'Rourke, 17, of Sachem st., Roxbury, after a handbag containing $25 was stolen from a passing automobile on Massachusetts ave.

O'Rourke was booked at the Back Bay station and will be arraigned in municipal court today. Jesse Shields, colored janitor of the building at 121 Newbury st., saw the theft from the automobile and was the hero of the capture.

Mrs. Dorothy Spaulding of East Sebago, Me., was operating her car on Massachusetts ave. at Newbury st. when a youth jumped to the running board and grabbed the handbag from her lap.

PAIR INJURED IN MALDEN CRASH

William L. McGregor, 71, of 265 Bay State rd., Back Bay, a retired Cambridge school master, received injuries from which he may die, when his auto struck another car and then a pole today on the Newburyport turnpike in Broadway, Malden.

His niece, Miss Greta McGregor, 28, of the same address, received less serious injuries but may be disfigured.

McGregor was on his way home after a summer at St. John, N. B., and attempted to pass a car driven by Miss Mary Larcom of Beverly Farms.

McGregor's tires caught in the car tracks and he struck Miss Larcom's car. His machine crashed into the pole.

McGregor and his niece were taken to Maplewood Hospital in Malden.

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

In the September number of Harper's Magazine there is a remarkable article called "Ex-Suicide." Naturally it is published anonymously It is as true and bitter a confession as I have ever read. But the thought that occurred to me as I read its burning words was. How could one so gifted as a writer imagine that all hope in living was lost to her?

The only reason given for the attempt at suicide was a lack of enough money to pay rent. Yet there must be in this woman a spiritual nature which should have saved her from her rash act Instead, she was saved by the intervention of a neighbor, who accidentally called upon her at the very moment when it was not too late to rescue her from death It is one of these dramatic coincidences, only too true to life, but utterly untrue to fiction. Had a novelist used this device he would have been laughed at

• • •

It happens that I have known many persons who took their own lives among them Ralph Barton the artist I have never understood why any of my acquaintances committed suicide but as a friend of mine once put it "I suppose no one understands except the suicide himself."

The act itself, dreadful as it is was never [illegible] so terrible to me [illegible] moments when [illegible] code [illegible] when one must be tormented [illegible] not quite having the [illegible] pain [illegible] in this article the [illegible] many [illegible] in advance the very hour when she would leave this world [illegible] experienced a sort of ex[illegible]

It used to be believed that tularemia affected animals alone. It menaced most commonly the wild rabbit and squirrel. Now it is known to affect man as [illegible]

The germ enters the body through a tiny scratch or cut on the hand, and at the point of infection a pustule or pimple soon appears. The part becomes red and swollen. 'APRES-MIDI' COAT

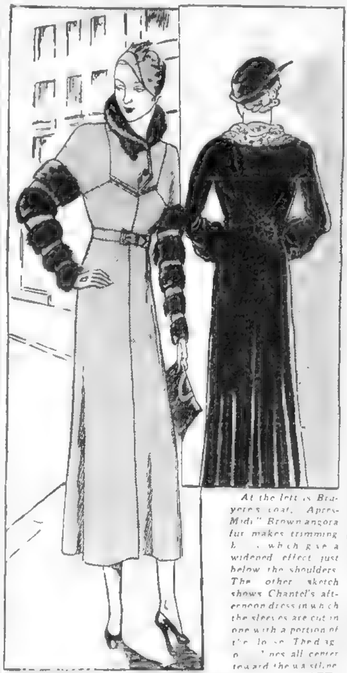
Bruyere's Model Is Fur Trimmed

—SKETCHED IN PARIS—



At the left is Bruyere's coat, "Apres-Midi." Brown angora fur makes trimming [illegible] which give a widened effect just below the shoulders. The other sketch shows Chantel's afternoon dress in which the sleeves are cut in one with a portion of the blouse. The diagonal lines all center toward the waistline.

Correct Manners

Proper Tips for Hotel Help

—By MRS. BEECKMAN—

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I expect soon to be living at a hotel conducted on the American plan and there are several little matters that puzzle me.

1. How frequently should one tip one's waitress in the dining room? How large should the tip be?

2. How often should the maid caring for one's room be tipped? And how large should the tip be?

S.

1. If you have the same waitress all the time, you will probably find it more convenient to tip her at the end of each week. What you give as the fee depends on many things [illegible] that is why no one can tell you definitely what to give [illegible] on the type of service that is given, on the type of hotel and principally on one's native generosity. The minimum would, I think, be a dollar a week and from that on [illegible] according to all the things that I have mentioned.

2. The same thing would apply to the maid who cares for [illegible] And about the same [illegible]

Engagement Party

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When giving a party to announce a daughter's engagement, does [illegible] or her mother extend the invitations? READER.

[illegible] mother sends the invitation [illegible] the mother's name. This is very important since, in this case the mother is not only the mother but the hostess of the home [illegible] of the party and the sponsor of the engagement.

Trimming Used Above Hips

By PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, Sept. 23.—Paris continues to confine all trimming, if any at all is used, to the portions of frocks or coats that are above the hips.

Big sleeves and sleeve ornamentations [illegible] skirts [illegible] on the [illegible] fitting smoothly over the hips and flaring only slightly at the hem are another. They tend to make legs look longer than they really are. A third is by means of establishing [illegible] either seams or pipings or trimming lines that run diagonally from the shoulders to the center front and center back of the waistline.

Bruyere makes use of all three of these methods to get the effect of the fashionable figure in her new coat called "Apres-Midi." Brown angora fur in the same warm tone as the wool fabric of the coat makes trimming bands which give a widened effect just below the shoulders. The arm eyes cut well in toward the center of the figure, end in diagonal formations.

There are diagonal lines all centering toward the waistline on the Chantel afternoon dress in the sketch.

Daily True Story

Jack, 'Jack' and Hi-Jack

HONKING HORNS, the squeal of brakes, a shrill sound of a police whistle, glistening streets, rain, a heterogeneous maze of traffic. It was six o'clock in New York.

It was quitting time for millions and Jack Clifford was one of those millions.

"How would you like to make a little extra money, Clifford?" The voice startled Jack as he turned to espy the face of Bob Gibson [illegible] was another truckman.

Jack realized the meaning of the offer. Probably [illegible] bootleg [illegible] It was [illegible] racket as Bob had [illegible] he got caught [illegible] he would not get caught; there were too many working at the game and very few got caught. If he were caught someone [illegible] real man would get him out of [illegible] Then there was Mary [illegible] it was worth taking the chance for her.

[illegible] seemed convinced of the soundness of the proposition.

"Well?" Gibson questioned. "You won't be taking any chance."

COMMITTING CRIME

He was committing a crime [illegible] suppose he were caught? Never. He would not be caught, he was too well protected, or at least that's what Gibson had told him. He [illegible] the wheel more [illegible] and decided he was going to make some more money soon. [illegible] and he was not going to be particular just how as long as he collected it. They entered the Queensborough Bridge [illegible] was not very heavy tonight.

The water was dripping down the windshield. Jack turned [illegible] wiper [illegible] make out Gibson's truck ahead, but it was unimportant [illegible] not [illegible] him on the bridge. [illegible] rain was annoying [illegible] wouldn't be long before he would be home. They entered Long Island and continued along [illegible] roads for [illegible] They entered a private estate and were directed [illegible] to take on the stuff that had been unloaded from a [illegible] yacht. This was a [illegible]

Midnight [illegible] booze was loaded. Old [illegible] than [illegible] who acted as intermediary between the big shot and the small fry bid the boys a gruff goodnight as they started on the [illegible] back to the garage.

SAW HIS CHANCE

Suddenly he heard the screech of brakes. Gibson's truck skidded on the wet road. He came to an abrupt stop. Jack heard voices as he [illegible] in behind Gibson. "Come on and get out," someone was ordering Bob. He could see a few figures in the dark. They were armed with revolvers. Two of them approached Jack.

"Come on you, too, feller," the tall one ordered. Jack peered intently trying to recognize the strangers. As he was about to obey, Gibson shouted, "Hijackers, Jack," and he stepped on the gas. Gibson's truck jerked into motion. Jack then knew they were being held up by some other mobsters. Firing two shots broke the stillness of the night. Gibson's truck swerved. Jack heard the crash as it ran off the road into a ditch.

The hold-up men started for the wrecked truck. Jack saw his chance. He stepped on the gas. Passing the gangsters on the road, he ducked low to escape the hail of lead that was fired upon him.

It was a week later before he [illegible] enough [illegible] to tell Mary of that tragic [illegible] She had read of Gibson's death in the newspapers.

Mary stood in silence for a moment looking at the ring on her finger. She hesitated a moment, then slid the ring from her finger.

"Here," she said as she handed him the ring.

Jack was dazed. He stood there with the ring in his hand.

"Do you mean," he blurted out, "You mean it's all over; we're not to be married?"

"No, silly," she laughed, "I mean that from now on anything you give me will be honestly earned."

MRS. DREAR AND MRS. CHEER

Mrs. Drear: For mercy's sake would you look at my Polly and your Molly? Playing in that mud puddle and I haven't a clean stitch for Polly to put on.

Mrs. Cheer: Well, they've both got rosy cheeks and that's something to be thankful for. As for the dirt, Oxydol will take that out quick as scat.

Have you tried this new washing soap?

● Made by the same folks who make Ivory Soap, Oxydol is a real blessing for women who dread the dishpan and the washtub. Oxydol is easy on hands, and it gives half again as much suds. It doesn't ball up or leave a scum—every particle dissolves instantly into foamy suds—that's why it's so economical. See for yourself, it gets rid of dirt and grease in a jiffy and takes the backache out of housework.

VALENTINE -:- By Hazel Livingston

A Heart-Gripping Novel Depicting Love and Disillusionment

Aunt Julia got undressed, and sat propped up against her pillows in bed, her old eiderdown cape wrapped around her shoulders to read and wait for Val's return.

She listened, straining her ears to hear what they were saying when Val and Joe stood on the front porch talking. They must have been there for half an hour but she couldn't hear a word they said.

Val came in at last, her eyes starry, her voice a little shaky.

"We're going to get the license tomorrow. I'm going back to Minnesota with him Friday. . . . Aunt Julia, don't look at me so! Aren't you happy—for me?"

* * *

Aunt Julia had breakfast ready at 8 o[illegible] Val had to go down town to finish her office work [illegible] her successor.

Aunt Julia's head felt swollen and heavy as if it would burst. She thought of Mrs. Carey's [illegible] that wouldn't help. But she wasn't that kind! No [illegible] for her. She'd get up and [illegible] no matter how she felt. Mrs. Carey could have hysterics and do her best to spoil everything, but she wouldn't, not if it killed her. She, Julia MacFarlane, would carry on.

As an extra gesture she made [illegible] a coffee cake and cooked the [illegible] with cream and cheese the way Val liked them best.

"Might as well do it up brown," she thought, setting the table expectantly, listening for Val, keeping an eye on the percolator.

Val ate the eggs and coffee cake with a dreamy smile. Hurried off to work, came back at 6, still dreamy, still smiling.

SORRY FOR AUNT

"Did you get your license? Let me see it."

"You don't get it. You just file a notice of intention, they call it. And then you come back and call for it. Oh, Aunt Julia, Joe is so wonderful. I mean he's so different from other people—"

"Humph! Not so much as he used to be. He was about the queerest kid—"

"Aunt Julia, don't start that! But even then he was nicer than the others. And now . . . I don't know—but he's finer—more—I can't explain—finer—better—"

"It must be wonderful to be in love," Miss MacFarlane said, squeezing out the dish rag with a practiced wrist.

"It is," Val said seriously. And she felt so sorry for poor Aunt Julia, who had never been in love, that her soft eyes filled with tears and she went to the back door to call the cat, to hide them.

Everything made her want to cry, she was so happy.

Mrs. Carey [illegible] but that wouldn't worry her. She wouldn't [illegible]

Mrs. Carey had insisted that she come to the wedding.

"There won't be any wedding," Joe had said.

"But there will be witnesses. That's the law. And if you won't have your own mother, instead of a stranger—"

Joe had tried to talk her out of it, but it wasn't any use. So he had explained how it was. "I thought we might concede that point, Val? If you're willing?"

"Then I'll have Aunt Julia—that's only fair!" she said stoutly.

But she hadn't told Aunt Julia yet. She was too much up in the clouds. She'd tell her later.

Aunt Julia wasn't surprised that she was to be a witness at the tiny wedding. She expected it. Took it as her right. Her only surprise was that Joe's mother was to be included.

Fortunately she couldn't know what was going on across the street.

"If you can't have your own sisters and brothers to your own wedding, then I give up," Mrs. Carey was saying, crying and darning Joe's best black silk socks with stout gray darning cotton at the same time.

"You're a meanie if you don't let me. Meanie, meanie, meanie—" Vivian, the baby of the family was crying, too.

HAPPY FAMILY

"See, the poor kid, how can you refuse her, Joe?"

"I wanta be the flower girl. I wanta be the—"

"Well, you can't. I ain't got time to make you the dress. Now I told you that, didn't I? All I'm askin' is for your brother—"

"Then if I can't be the flower girl I don't care. I won't go. I don't care if the whole family goes. I won't—"

"Joe, do you think her white lingerie would do, if I done it up nice? With a big pink bow or somethin', Joe?" What the poor kid needs is a perm'nent. All the kids has them. Those old kinks I put in with the iron! Stop crying, lover. Maybe your brother'll let you have one. He's got so much money nowadays."

Vivian's sobs stopped miraculously.

"Oh, keen! But no old pink sash, thank you. I want a NEW blue slip, to go under my dress!"

Ruthie, the mousy 15-year-old whose feelings were always hurt, sobbed once, and ran from the room.

"Vivian, go see what's the matter with your sister!" Joe insisted, giving the now radiant Vivian a push towards the door.

"No, never mind, lover, Joe, that'd just make it worse. She's jealous. Wants a perm'nent, too. Wants every last thing her little sister gets."

"If one gets it so does the other."

"Very well, Joe, dear," his mother said meekly.

"But none of them goes to the wedding—that's flat!"

"Joe, it don't hurt you, and if it gives the poor kid any fun to be a flower girl, why do you be so selfish? If it gives them any fun—"

"Oh, I wanta—Mama, make him let me! Mama—make him—"

Edwina, who was doing her algebra at the table said, "If anyone in this family goes, I'm the logical one, being the only unmarried young lady. Not that I care, of course. It's just the principle of the thing!"

Joe went for a walk.

When he came back he found Vivian sitting on her front stoop and Vivian [illegible] and [illegible] smiling he de[illegible]

And then he came into the sitting room where she sat reading the woman's section of the Sunday paper.

"Claire wants us to go over there and play some poker," he said. "She says they have a crowd of people in for supper . . . Let's go, Mary Faith. Everybody plays cards on Sunday; and we've done nothing but sit around this flat dying of dry-rot, for a month or more."

Mary Faith looked up at him with troubled eyes.

"Kim, you and I never have played cards on Sunday," she answered. "Why should we start to do it now?—Besides, the Maldons play for money and I wouldn't gamble even on a week-day. I don't want to go, Kim."

He stood staring into space for a minute or two. Then he shrugged his shoulders.

"Suit yourself," he said. "But I hope you won't mind if I go. I'd like to get out of this place for a couple of hours. After all, Sunday is the only day in the week that I have to myself [illegible], and I'd like to see people once in a while. You never ask anybody here."

Lots of Fun

"You won't let me ask Jean Bartlett here," Mary Faith reminded him. "And you know we used to have lots of fun with Jean and the men she used to pal around with . . . Kim, I don't like you to get into the habit of drinking and gambling with those Maldons. You never used to do things like that."

Kim started back to the telephone.

"Well, I'm doing them now," he said as he walked away from her. "I suppose I still have some personal liberty even if I am a married man."

She heard him tell Claire that he'd be right down. Then she heard him go on down the hall to his bedroom.

She got up presently and followed him.

He was standing at his dresser plastering his blond hair close to his head with two military brushes.

"Kim, I don't know what to do about the Maldons," Mary Faith said, her eyes meeting his in the cloudy mirror above the dresser. "They're nice people, but I think they're too swift for us . . . At the same time I think that a wife should be a good sport. I'd always made up my mind to like your friends and to go wherever you went——"

Wet Blanket

"Well, why don't you go then instead of talking about it so much?" Kim cut her short. "Playing cards on Sunday isn't one of the seven deadly sins, whether you know it or not——"

"Oh, I wasn't going to play cards even if I went," Mary Faith interrupted him this time. "I thought I'd go and read while the rest of you played. I'd have just as good a time as the rest of you, and I wouldn't bother anyone."

Kim thought that over for a moment.

"No, that wouldn't do," he decided. "You'd be just a wet blanket, sitting there by yourself, refusing to take a drink or enter into the spirit of things . . . If you're not going to go and behave yourself like a human being you'd better stay here."

He took out his bill-fold and took a $10 note from it. Then with a grin he handed her the bill-fold.

"That's all I'm going to take with me," he said, pocketing the $10. "When I've lost that I'll leave . . . Ten dollars are all those sharks are going to get from me this night, my girl."

It was long after midnight when he came home. Mary Faith was in bed and he did not turn on the light in the room when he came in. She heard him stumble against a chair. Then he sat down heavily on the side of the bed.

"You can turn on the light, Kim. I'm awake," she said.

Turned on Light

He turned it on and stood blinking at her in the sudden white radiance. His hat was on the back of his head and his overcoat was thrown wide open. He took it off and Mary Faith saw that he had only a [illegible]

"I took it off while we were playing poker," he explained, "and I must have left it at the Maldons'. Don't worry about it, Mary Faith. Jack'll bring it down to the office in the morning."

He was shaking all over. "Cold, isn't it?" he asked. "Cold as Greenland."

[illegible]

YANKEES BEST CLUB IN WORLD, SAYS RUTH

FANNING

With GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Big Series Warriors. ↑ A Real Chatter Box.
Ruth, Most Colorful. "Shot" With Capone.
Gabby Hartnett Next. ↓ His Rival Backstop.

Speaking of Color, Remember OLD Cubs?

COLOR, THAT INDEFINABLE something that makes a player or a club talked about and therefore written about—both World Series contenders, Yanks and Cubs, have plenty of it. Cavorting out in Fenway with the Yankees today is the most colorful figure baseball ever produced, Babe Ruth. His teammates give you plenty to talk about, write about, too. Of course the present day Cubs are not as colorful an aggregation as the Cubs of the Tinker to Evers to Chance era, nor as mirth provoking or hate instilling as the old Braves, when both Rabbit Maranville and Johnny Evers played upon the emotions of the fans like an ancient Irish bard on his harp of sallywood. There never was a pair quite like Johnny and The Rabbit. One was the master goat getter who only had to twiddle derisive fingers to set the grandstand in a frenzy; the other a little rascal you couldn't help loving, friend or foe. The present Cubs lost a large gob of color when Hack Wilson lost his batting eye and was put on the block, but they have oodles of it left. There is plenty of color, for instance to the Cub leader, Charlie Grimm, who can play any musical instrument from a piano to a saxaphone, paint anything from a fence to a portrait, makes a home brew that tastes almost as good as that rare old Haucks off the wood all the pre prohibition ball players used to rave over when they hit Cincinnati, and in general do more things to entertain you, intrigue you than any other nine guys you ever knew.

OUTSIDE OF THE BAMBINO, himself, two of the most colorful players in the coming World Series are the two backstops, Gabby Hartnett and Bill Dickey. We can claim Gabby as a home grown product for he was born a few miles down yonder in Woonsocket, not so far from the birthplace of the greatest second baseman of all time, Nap Lajoie. Gabby is a rollicking, divil may care Irish lad who goes into action with a song on his lips and a great line of chatter, Gabby likes to talk to everyone. One afternoon out in Cubs park he was leaning over a grandstand box talking to Al Capone. A photographer shot Gabby and the King of the Gangsters. The picture was printed broadcast throughout the country, causing Granma Landis to howl in holy horror at the idea of ball players associating with such characters and to pass the fool rule barring ball players from conversing with spectators and members of opposing teams from fraternizing or talking to one another. Judge Landis never inquired where Capone got the season pass that admitted him to all Cub games. Somebody in the front office must have been friendly with Al, too, Judge.

THE NO TALKING RULE took so much color out of baseball that it no longer is rigidly enforced. It is still there, like some of the old blue laws which remain only to be broken. Today you'll note Babe Ruth talking to as many kids as ever out in Fenway Park, and autographing just as many baseballs. And when the World Series start you'll see Gabby Hartnett, joking with, riding and ragging the Yankee players in the same old way, and keeping his own gang up on their toes and hustling every minute. Of course Gabby can't lean over the grand stand rail and converse with Capone, for Al is in the hoosegow, now, and no longer holds down his favorite chair in Cubs park.

BASEBALL IS WORK to some players. To others it is play. You only have to get a look at Gabby Hartnett in action to see that playing with him is sheer joy. The minute he starts to fasten on the shin pads, a broad Celtic grin splits his face and he goes in there behind the bat with a yip of joy on his lips. Winning or losing that smile is always there. The Cubs have had plenty of downs as well as ups, since Hartnett first went behind the bat for them in 1922. But lean year or fat year it made no difference with Hartnett's grin. The only time it ever was wiped off was that day in 1929 when the Cubs clinched the pennant. The winning run over, there was great joy and much hilarity in the Cubs dugout. Everyone laughing, joking and whooping it up—everyone except poor Gabby. Off in the corner sat Gabby looking as glum and sad as a mourner. That was the year that Hartnett's arm went back on him and he couldn't peg the ball past the pitcher's box. Gabby couldn't do a thing to help the Cubs into the pennant and he was heartbroken. But Gabby came back in 1930 with the bells on. You can't keep a good man down.

GABBY HASN'T BEEN hitting up to his usual standard this year. The last time we looked at [illegible] averages Hartnett was [illegible] only around .265. That's a mighty low figure for the big [illegible] foot [illegible] back [illegible] their big [illegible] batting average better than [illegible] the Yankee [illegible] dangerous man [illegible] know they can depend on him.

HARTNETT'S RIVAL [illegible] since M[illegible] the American League [illegible] him a [illegible] but that was [illegible] thumb [illegible] Carl Reynolds [illegible] trouble caused a big slump in [illegible] batting average [illegible] back. [illegible]

WHAT'LL HAPPEN TO Yankees or Cubs [illegible] or other puts out Hartnett or Dickey? The Yankees will have to depend on Arndt Jorgens. And it is [illegible] Should Hartnett be put out of commission Charlie Grimm will have to [illegible] on young Ralston Hemsley, who is a Play Boy and can't seem to settle down. Three and a half seasons with the Pirates and another with the Cubs has failed to make Hemsley take life seriously. Grimm only had relieved Hornsby in command when he was forced to fine and suspend Hemsley for some jam the Play Boy got into in Philadelphia. Neither Yankees nor Cubs are well fortified in reserve backstop material and should anything happen to Hartnett or Dickey in the World Series it may prove a costly blow. Both Hartnett and Dickey have playing ability, as well as color.

KIDDER GOES TO HARVARD VARSITY

Alfred Kidder, 2d, giant tackle, is the latest recruit to rejoin the Harvard varsity squad. Kidder will report with the Crimson candidates this morning after a preparatory course with Coach Jimmy Knox's second varsity for the past week.

Standing over six feet in his socks and weighing between 220 and 225 pounds, Kidder is the biggest member of all the grid squads at Soldiers Field. Up to this date Ira Hardy, All-American tackle, has claimed the heavyweight honors, but today he must resign his crown to the newest member of the Crimson grid family, who tops him by several inches and outweighs him by fully 15 pounds.

Kidder prepared for Harvard at Andover Prep where he was rated one of the finest linemen in schoolboy ranks. After a couple of seasons as the outstanding tackle in the prep school league he joined the Harvard freshmen.

KIDDER STOPPED REGULARS

Kidder made his big bid of the season for varsity recognition last Tuesday when Casey ordered the first scrimmage with the junior varsity. Kidder at left tackle for the Javvees, broke up play after play before the varsity backs could get going and drew the eye of the varsity mentor. In fact he was through the varsity line so fast and in the backfield that Casey stopped the practice to commend the Javvee lineman and loose his ire on the regular frontiers men.

Kidder repeated his performance again yesterday when the varsity engaged in a defensive drill with the scrubs and showed that he was equally as good on the attack as on the defense, and Line Coach Nelson recommended that he be taken up to the varsity.

Two other scrubs will be given a tryout with the varsity today. Taggart Whipple and Alan Sherman, a pair of halfbacks, showed well in yesterday's scrimmage and were deemed worthy of a showing. Taggart, a former Noble & Greenough star, [illegible] He is reputed to be an excellent blocker and should be a fine forward pass receiver.

CASEY SWINGS AXE

Sherman, the other halfback, is 15 pounds lighter, but is a hard working back who can stand plenty of punishment. He played at Watertown high before serving a year with the Crimson freshman eleven.

Casey swung the axe yesterday, reducing his squad by seven. Four backs and three linemen were ordered to report to Coach Jimmy Knox's junior varsity squad for further development.

Irving W. Rabinowitz, quarterback from Boston Latin School; Paul deGive, St. Paul's quarterback; John F. Hutchinson, tackle from Belmont Hill; Pierce Furber, Middlesex, halfback; Thomas Gannett, Milton, [illegible] guard; Bernard [illegible], Boston Latin School half back, and Nathan [illegible], a Cambridge [illegible] who prepped at Exeter were sent to the second squad.

Casey is satisfied today that the varsity defense is sound and that after a few more weeks of play, he believes, it will be as hard to penetrate as a year ago. The Crimson regulars stopped the Javvees without a 45-minute defensive [illegible].

Herman Gunlach continues to [illegible] regular guard berth over [illegible] Rogers. Rogers returned [illegible] and participated in the [illegible]. But his week's absence has given Gunlach a lead which will be hard to overcome. Rogers ran through signal drills, teaming up with Frank Crane, Exeter [illegible] who is converted from center to guard.

TWO VETS WITH HUNTINGTON

Huntington School football squad comprising 23 players, has a hard week of practice ahead, according to Coach Monte Moore. The first game will be on October 1 at Brockton with the high school outfit.

Moore is forced to build his team around the only two returning letter men, Roger Whittemore, Somerville, 235-pound tackle, and Salvi Pascussi, 190-pound veteran end, from Framingham.

Only three other men who played under the tutelage of Moore last year are back. Dan Lucey, Natick guard; Will Gillies, Melrose fullback and Joseph Ball, Brookline end.

JOE JACOBS' MIND RESTS EASILY

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Sept. 23 (INS)—After spending several days looking earnestly for the bag, Mr. Joe Jacobs is on his way back to Speculator, N. Y., this morning, convinced that all is well and that, oddly or otherwise, the better man must and will win the Schmeling-Walker prize fight on Monday night.

He even is abandoning his threatened visit to the boxing commission today and has deputized a mysterious "second party" to present his list of judges and referees for official consideration. Altogether Mr. Jacobs must be suffering very acutely. He now has nothing to worry about.

At least that was his story before leaving town last night, a surprise departure in view of a sinister threat of "startling disclosures" and his proposed show-down with the commission.

BLOCKED ALL MOVES

He said something vague about having "blocked all moves" and it may be added, for the sake of greater clarity, that life to Mr. Jacobs is made up of scoundrels lurking ominously in dark doorways. But always he thwarts them just in time with a swift [illegible] and then reassured and comforted he relaxes his vigilance.

They must have been completely non-[illegible] this time for even his list of officials is a negative one. It won't name the men he wants, but the men he doesn't want, and I trust I am violating no confidence when I venture to state that among the latter will be Gunboat Smith, the referee, and George Kelly, the judge who voted for Sharkey in the last fight.

However, it isn't always that Mr. Jacobs is thus easily rid of his misgivings. In fact he is distressed by the appearance of tranquility, and so he suffered a series of growing qualms before the Stribling fight in Cleveland causing him to rush out into the night seeking reassurance.

This he readily obtained and was able in consequence to compose himself for the night with the reflection that this was to be a contest of skill and that after all the better man [illegible].

Bill Dickey of Yanks Has Edge on Hartnett

By JOE CASHMAN

This is the fourth of a series comparing the New York Yankees and Chicago Cubs written by Joe Cashman, baseball editor of the Boston Evening American

The triumph of the Yankees and Cubs this season is more proof, though none is needed, that a team is only as strong as its catching.

The Yanks have the best catcher in baseball in Bill Dickey. The Cubs have the outstanding National League receiver in Leo "Gabby" Hartnett, a Bay State product.

Dickey's superiority over Hartnett is due entirely to his better hitting. The big Yankee backstop has hit well over .300 all season while his Cub rival has always been far below that mark.

As mechanical receivers, there is nothing to choose between them. As strategists, the edge must be given to Hartnett because of his greater experience.

Hartnett has an ideal temperament for a catcher. He was well named when the handle "Gabby" was tacked to him. He keeps up encouragement to his mates every minute of the way. In this way he stands out over Dickey.

GABBY "UMPIRES"

Gabby also has a habit of umpiring not possessed by Dickey and which won't hurt the Cubs a bit when National League umpires are working behind the plate in the series.

When he receives a pitch that could be a third strike but lands a little away from the mark, he yells "beauty" and starts throwing the ball around the infield. More than once we have seen him earn an undeserved strike-out for his pitcher in this way. His smile and personality make a big hit with the arbiters and they never give him the worst of it.

Dickey, on the other hand, lets the man in blue behind him do all the officiating. When he's not satisfied with the verdict, he's far from polite in saying so. This doesn't hurt him; neither does it help him.

BOTH THROW WELL.

Both are first-class throwers. If their pitchers hold the runners close to the bag, there'll be few stolen bases in the series.

Hartnett usually hits over or against the fences or not at all. Dickey can hit just as far but he also collects his share of line singles, which accounts for his batting superiority.

Leo hits right-handed; Bill left-handed. The Yankee is by far the faster of the pair.

The Yanks will be in a bad way if anything happens to Dickey. They have only Arndt Jorgens as a substitute and he's just another catcher. Old Zach Taylor, former Brave and now the Cubs' third-string backstop, is in the same class. His activities in the series, though, will be confined to the bull pen.

Assuming that Dickey will catch every game from start to finish, the Yanks are stronger back of the bat because of the edge Bill holds over Gabby with the stick. Otherwise, the New Yorker has little on the Millville boy.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

BACKSTOP KINGS TO MEET IN SERIES

Take your pick. They're both great catchers, are Bill Dickey of the Yankees, top, and Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs, below. Each is the best in his league. Dickey is the better hitter of the two, and faster afoot. But Gabby is a playing chatterbox and the better strategist. Hartnett is a Millville, Mass., boy.

GREEN MAY TRY AERIALS ON NORWICH

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 23—The opening of college today brought to an end Dartmouth's two-session practice schedule, and Coach Jack Cannell prepared to put the Indian through a single drill on Memorial Field.

The session Tuesday was devoted to a dummy scrimmage, with Jack Cannell working on 1931 plays which will be used by the Green in its opening contest against Norwich tomorrow.

An aerial attack may play an important part in the Norwich game. The Indians have tried several forward pass plays, with Bill Clark and Sammy Fishman doing the tossing for the first team, and Jack Hill and Lyn Schollenberger for the second team.

The two first string backfields have Sammy Fishman, Bill Clark, Roald Morton and Jack Donovan doing the ball-toting for the first group, and Rudy Patch, Lyn Schollenberger, Jack Hill and Dave Hedges working as the sub quartet.

So What?

—By JOE MOONEY—

No dough for Rogers Hornsby. That's making a sandwich out of the hand that fed you.

It's almost as hard to believe as the story about the race horse that bet on the man.

After Rogers retired from the Cubs, he went in for farming. It was a big mistake. He should know how it is with the farmers at election time.

Hornsby will appeal to Landis to make a test case. Should the boss have to take a vacation without pay?

The Cubs are willing to meet Rahjah half way. They want him to take his pay on the cuff of his Chicago uniform shirt.

September Morn.

Koenig Cut Shows Cuts Ungrateful, Fan Consensus

By RILEY GRANNON

It is the consensus in local baseball circles that the Cubs were dumb and ungrateful when they failed to award Shortstop Mark Koenig a full share of the World Series melon and extremely spiteful in refusing to cut Rogers Hornsby, their former pilot, in on the dough.

Koenig won the pennant for the club. Now he is asked to try and win the long end of the World Series purse for fellow players who wouldn't give him a full share. He'll be only human if he feels the slight and frets enough about it to be somewhat off in his play against the Yanks.

Hornsby piloted the Cubs most of the year and had them at or very close to the top while he was on the job. He should have been awarded at least a half share.

One hit in four times up for Dale Alexander and three out of five for Jimmy Foxx leave the pair tied for first place in the American League batting championship race, today, with a mark of .360.

Two of Foxx's blows were home runs, his 55th and 56th of the season. He needs four in three games to tie Babe Ruth's major league circuit drive record.

Boston fans will have a chance to see Charlie Devens and Eddie Gallagher pitted against each other at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon. It will be Harvard Charlie's debut on the Yankee mound in a major league game. Boston College Eddie has started two games and finished others for the Sox.

General Alvin Crowder, crack right-handed hurler of the Senators, had little trouble hanging up his 15th straight and 25th victory of the season in the fourth and final game of the series with the Red Sox. After the first inning when he was found for two hits and two runs, including Roy Johnson's first home run of the season at the Fens, the Capital ace gave only two singles, and won as he pleased, 4 to 2, to give the visitors a clean sweep of the engagement.

Lutze, Siki Meet at Revere Tuesday

Nick Lutze, colorful California heavyweight, has been signed to meet Regis Siki in a finish mat bout, best two falls out of three, at the Rollaway Rink, Revere, on next Tuesday night.

B. U. LOSES ONE BACK, GAINS ANOTHER

Boston University's football hopes, which have been continuously set back since the start of the season, dropped a bit lower today when it was learned that Dave Nemzoff had left college to enter business.

Nemzoff is a 195 pound fullback and he was slated for a regular job this season. In the early practice sessions he proved to be a hard running back; an excellent punter, a good passer, blocker and defensive back.

This loss is bound to hurt the small Terrier squad as Coach Lane has few veteran backs.

The Terrier coach, however, is not downcast as Johnny Ulman, a regular halfback last year, again has felt the urge to play and reported unexpectedly yesterday after he had said that he would not play this year.

Ulman made the team as a sophomore last year and held his job against all sorts of competition. He was the best pass receiver on the squad and was an outstanding blocking back.

The team will scrimmage again today and a first eleven will be selected after the scrimmage.

BAMBINO TO FACE RED SOX AT FENWAY

By RILEY GRANNON

If the New York Yankees aren't setting the world ablaze with their brilliance these days, it's because of the natural reaction which sets in after a team has clinched a pennant, Manager Joe McCarthy wants his Boston admirers to know.

Marse Joseph brought his flag-winners, including Babe Ruth, to town today and lost no time informing local American League rooters that they have no cause to worry over the New Yorkers' chances in the World Series.

"The Yanks will be as good as ever against the Cubs," their popular pilot declared upon arrival. "The defeat administered my strongest lineup, with Ruffing pitching, and the harsh treatment accorded Gomez by the Athletics, in the past two days, don't mean a thing.

BOYS LACK INCENTIVE

"Like all players who have the race won, my boys lack their usual incentive and they can't afford to take any chances right now. Their chief concern is getting on edge for the series, which is as it should be. So there is nothing to be surprised or alarmed about if they turn in an occasional ragged performance.

"I'm sure they'll all be at their best and as formidable as ever when they take the field against the Cubs in the Yankee Stadium next Wednesday. I hope the Cubs doubt this. It will make our task of winning much easier, if the enemy underrates us. However, I regard Charlie Grimm and his boys as too smart to believe that we will be below form."

Babe Ruth appeared in perfect fettle as he stepped off the train and insisted he felt as good as he looked.

"I may eventually have to have my appendix removed, but it isn't bothering me in the least now and, if my physicians know what they are talking about, it won't again until after the series is over.

"I expect to make my best showing in my tenth World Series.

"Sure the Yanks will win. We're the best ball club in the world."

McCARTHY CONFIDENT

McCarthy echoed the Bambino's sentiments both as regards the latter's condition and his rating of the club.

"I'm not worrying about Ruth's condition," said Joe. "The big fellow has never failed me in a pinch yet and he won't in this World Series."

It was McCarthy's burning ambition when he was fired as the Cubs' manager to pilot a team in to the World Series against an entry owned by William J. Wrigley and managed by Rogers Hornsby and score a most decisive triumph.

The death of Wrigley and the discharge of Hornsby frustrated Marse Joseph's hopes, but the Yankee pilot is as determined as ever to hand his old club a sound trouncing, even though his old pal Charlie Grimm, is now boss of the Windy City entry.

YANK BOSS EXPECTS FIGHT

And Joe thinks he will succeed, but not as easily as many experts are predicting.

"I'm not holding the Cubs lightly," he stated. "Most critics are picking us to win without much trouble, but, while I have no doubt we will win out, I expect plenty of stiff opposition from my old club. Any team that wins a pennant in a major league must possess a lot of class and power and it's ridiculous to predict that any series contender will be soft picking for the opposition, no matter how strong the latter."

McCarthy hasn't decided yet how he will work his pitchers in the series. He will wait, he says, until the games roll around to do that.

The failure of Gomez to display his early-season effectiveness in recent weeks isn't worrying the pilot. He expects his star southpaw to be in top form when the classic starts, and should Vernon fail him he's confident the Yanks will win just the same.

BRITISH WOMAN THREAT IN U. S. TITLE GOLF

MISS WILSON AT PEAK FOR SALEM TEST

By BILL GRIMES

With two English women and three Canadians participating, the annual United States women's championship which begins with an 18-hole qualifying round on Monday at the Salem Country Club, will have its usual international flavor.

As there are only three days remaining before they go into action the aspirants for the title now in the possession of Miss Helen Hicks are now devoting their time to serious golf and making a careful study of the Peabody layout.

There appears to be a noticeable difference of opinions as to just where the markers should be placed during the championship. All of the long hitters believe that Salem is short and that unless the course plays longer than 6100 yards it will not give them the advantage they claim should be theirs.

MISS VAN WIE HAS 73

During a practice round yesterday Miss Virginia Van Wie raced around in 73. She was 38 to the turn and then came home in 35 which included three putts at the 15th. Miss Van Wie played with Miss Helen Hicks, the defending champion, before a large gallery. While Miss Van Wie was establishing a new record for women yesterday Miss Hicks was approximately 77 but did not appear to be playing in the 70s. Miss Hicks was long off the tee but encountered trouble approaching and putting.

During the practice rounds at Salem Miss Enid Wilson, the British women's titleholder, has made a lasting impression with all who have been fortunate enough to see her play. She plays exceptionally sound golf and has yet to show any weakness of importance. She is as long as any player in the field and has a beautiful putting stroke. Incidentally, her putter is two inches longer than the average.

MISS WILSON TIRELESS.

Miss Wilson plays 18 holes every morning and then practices for three or four hours in the afternoon. It is nothing out of the ordinary for her to hit 300 to 400 balls in a practice session. She seems tireless.

After her morning workout yesterday Miss Wilson varied her program by taking the afternoon off to play a round with Pres. Goodhue of the Salem Country Club. She was back early this morning and is playing with Ian Drysdale, the club professional.

With the exception of Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare who arrived today, all of the contestants have played at least one round at Salem. Miss Maureen Orcott should go well at Salem as should Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, the Western woman champion.

Miss Enid Wilson is the most serious threat on the field. If the Americans can stop her from returning to England with the title, it will be a distinct surprise to those who have followed the English titleholder at Salem.

There will be 101 women playing in the qualifying round on Monday. The low 32 will make the match play grade and it probably will require an 85 or 86 to stay in the championship after Monday's qualifications.

Trapshooting at Medford Tomorrow

The N. E. Amateur Trapshooting Assn. will hold its championship competition at the traps of the Palace Gun Club, Hay st., Medford, tomorrow, with 200 targets at 16 yards. Eight rounds of 25 shots each will be required, four rounds in the morning and four in the afternoon.

HALAIKO STOPS RAWSON IN FIFTH ROUND

By JACK CONWAY

Steve Halaiko of Buffalo looked the part of the perfect fighting machine ring worms like to talk about as he knocked out Tommy Rawson Jr. of East Boston in five rounds at an Argonne A. A. show at the Arena.

Halaiko first outboxed and then outpunched Rawson. He toyed with the East Boston youth until he decided to open up and wreck the opposition.

Rawson was on his way to defeat when the bell sounded for the end of the second round. Shortly before the gong a short left hook to the jaw followed by a right hand smash to the same spot had started the damage.

HALAIKO FORCES GOING

Halaiko forced the issue beginning with the fifth round. A short left hook to the jaw followed by a right to the chin dropped Rawson after one minute and 35 seconds of battling. A towel came flying from Rawson's corner at the count of four. It was tossed in by Tommy Rawson Sr., father of the defeated boxer.

Dutch Leonard of Waltham received the unanimous verdict over Fino Nyholm of Maynard in the semi-final of six rounds. The decision was unanimous.

Johnny Dixon of Norwood scored a two-round knockout over Buster Thiel who also hails from Norwood.

Dixon's heavy punches beat Thiel back in the first round. Early in the second frame Dixon dropped Thiel with a right to the jaw. Thiel came up off the canvas at the count of nine. Dixon swarmed all over him, and crashed a short right to the jaw when at close quarters. Thiel hit the deck and was counted out by Referee Joe O'Connor.

POWERS TAKES DECISION

Ritchie Powers of Boston [illegible] brilliantly as he outpunched Hookie Jackson of Westerly, R. I. in a furious six-round go.

Bill Nevens of Cambridge tossed too much leather for Gordon Faulkner of Somerville in their four-round event.

Joey Kemp of Cambridge outscored Jack Gorman, another Cambridge youth, over the four-round distance.

Jim Shaunnessey and Frank Montgomery were the judges, while Fred Claus sat by the Big Ben.

Pro boxing in Boston hit a new low when 1300 persons paid $653 to see the show.

Hole-in-One Tourney List Closes Monday

By BILL GRIMES.

Since the number of entries in the Boston Evening American's Hole-In-One contest have increased with every mail until they are now coming in by the hundreds daily, it has been decided to extend the closing date for entries to Monday, September 26, instead of Saturday, September 24.

Such widespread interest has been shown in this contest that the Boston American feels that hundreds more of the golfing public will want to compete for the prizes offered in Boston's first tournament of this kind.

More than 1000 New England golfers including the very best and the very worst are already entered in the tournament. It is estimated that fully twice this number may be given starting times before the contest is officially opened.

Gene Sarazen

Gene Sarazen, British and U. S. Open champion, Francis Ouimet, Jesse Guilford, and other prominent pro and amateur linksmen will try their luck with the duffers in this tourney.

The many prizes offered to those skillful, or lucky enough to drop the ball into the cup or inside the prize winning area on the newly constructed 19th hole at Franklin Park are on exhibition all this week.

William J. Kennedy, president of the William J. Kennedy clothing store on Summer st. has set aside one of his display windows for the exhibition of the Hole-In-One prizes. Mr. Kennedy incidentally heads a team of players from that store who will compete for one of the team prizes.

Practically every mail brings a query as to the probability of a golfer's scoring a hole-in-one in this tournament.

In this connection we received an interesting communication from an entrant with a mathematical turn of mind. He figures the chances are about 1500 to 1 against the golfer who has five shots at a cup 115 yards away.

If his data is correct, and there is much to indicate that the figures [illegible] may have miscalculated since he covered fully two sheets of paper with figures, it is quite possible that more than one entrant in this tournament may [illegible]

The odds in this contest figure something like 10,000 shots at the pin, and either luck or skill will contrive to land at least one of these shots in the four inch cup on the 40 by 50 green.

A strong group of golfers who are entered with the intention of capturing the team prize or the individual prize or both is the United Shoe Machinery golf team whose entries were received today.

This club will be strengthened by the additional entries of [illegible] and Ray Nies.

MORE WOMEN ENTER

Evidently our remarks yesterday concerning the paucity of women entrants in the Hole-In-One contest was taken to heart by several women golfers, for now 20 female entrants hastened to send in blanks.

For the benefit of those who are wondering what this tourney is about, the rules are simple. Any man or woman over 18 is eligible to compete. Each golfer is allowed five shots, and those shots coming within a stipulated area—or dropping in the cup—are measured and tabulated. If no one makes a hole-in-one, the nearest ball to the pin wins first prize.

There is no entry fee.

Simply fill out the entry blank printed elsewhere on this page and you will be informed as to your starting time. The committee asks you to name your starting time preference, and those who want starting times together should send their entries in together.

HANDICAPS FAIL TO CURB HYDE PARK DRILLS

BOYS KEPT ON JUMP BY SHERLOCK

By JOE MOONEY

The 33 years of high school football coaching which have made him the dean of football tutors rest lightly on Skip Sherlock, coach of the Hyde Park high team now hard at work on Reservation Field, Hyde Park.

Nothing bothers Skip very much. He makes the most of conditions which would send a less experienced director looking for a nice quiet asylum.

It makes little difference to Skip and his squad of 70 valiants that their training field is easily one of the worst in Greater Boston. It is also of little consequence to Hyde Park that the funds available to outfit the squad amounted to just $230, a little more than $3 a player. They should worry if the playing field hasn't even a set of goal posts. For hard work and discipline are all that Skip demands of his players—and he gets them in full measure.

BOYS WORK HARD

The session was in full swing when we dropped in on Skip for a summary of Hyde Park's football affairs. Along one side of the field the linemen were going through a charging drill, two guards blocking an opposing tackle. The backs were going through a drill in broken field running, weaving in and out of lines, and paying scant attention to the treacherous terrain.

Complete silence on the part of the players was noticeable. Without any supervision from the coach the boys attended to the business at hand, with no stalling and no horseplay.

Skip called his veterans out of line one at a time.

"This is Capt. Del Tossi. He's an end. Weighs about 153. All right, Del—go back to work."

And Captain Tossi turned on his heel and returned to the monotonous business of blocking and charging.

BATTLES BIG TACKLE

Next was Frank Battles, first string tackle and all round athlete. He packs 188 pounds of a rangy frame, and begs to be excused when you ask him what kind of season he expects to have. Exit Frank Battles.

Frank Adler, younger brother of Billy Adler, the ex-Latin school lineman, now at Harvard, is picked as the first string center. He weighs 195, and is a veteran whom Sherlock will hate to lose.

Two good guards are Jim Howland and Al Di Cenzo. Howland tips 190 and Di Cenzo weighs 176. With Adler, this trio will be one of the strongest in the district league.

Sherlock draws liberally from the other Hyde Park teams for his football material. From the swimming team he has Whitney Wright, a 170-pound tackle candidate. From the track team, Skip took Hyde Park's best 600-yard runner, Bill Allenshepski, to play the end opposite Capt. Tossi.

BACKS LIGHT, FAST

Hyde Park's backfield will be light and fast. Lefty Moran weighs 15[illegible], Fred Beale, the [illegible] runner, goes only 14[illegible] and so does Al Dray. Warren McGinnis and Jack Russell, both of whom will see plenty of action this fall, manage to pack 160 pounds, while the heaviest back on the squad is Walter Bracken, a 170 pound fullback.

Guido Trochio and Bill Edmondstone are challengers for a first string tackle and end berth respectively, and you will hear plenty from Paul Kilduff, back, Hyde Park's four letter athlete.

With a week to go before the opening date Sherlock is still giving his charges fundamental work.

COURT FINES MAXEY $250

New York, Sept. 23 (INS)—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, must pay a fine of $250 for contempt of court unless he submits to an examination before trial next Wednesday under a ruling of Supreme Court Justice Bernard Shientag.

The decision was made in a suit brought by Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight boxer, against the former world's champion for failure to keep a contract to box him in September, 1931.

Justice Shientag fixed the fine because of Schmeling's failure to obey a court order for an examination on Aug. 4. The justice said if Schmeling appeared Wednesday the fine would be remitted.

Carnera seeks a judgment of $100,000 for alleged damages.

TONY PLANSKY GRID BRAVES STANDOUT

After five days of concentrated scrimmaging and drilling the Boston Braves were allowed to taper off with a [illegible] workout today and were scheduled to take tomorrow off in preparation for their second exhibition game against the Providence Steam Roller at Providence Sunday.

Every day at the Lynn Stadium it is more evident that Tony Plansky, the All-American ex-Georgetown boy, is destined to be a standout with the pro eleven at the Tepees this season.

The opposing linemen, drawn from All-American ranks [illegible], accustomed to stopping almost any back, are vehement in stating that Plansky is about the hardest of all the [illegible] Braves backs to stop.

Plenty of substitutes will be used in the next stand of the Braves against Providence. Among those who are expected to see action are Reggie Westfall, Ohio Wesleyan back; Marion Dickens, Georgia quarterback, and Wray's second string [illegible].

Wray indicated that in the Steam Roller tilt he would have his quarterbacks stress a running game rather than uncork their aerial fireworks.

Two weeks hence the lid of the professional season will be pried off with the appropriate fireworks when Benny Friedman's team comes to town.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

PAUL BOWSER will be the big wrestling man at the Boston Garden for the next five years. He has taken over the lease on the North Station sports palace which was held by the American Wrestling Association.

Mr. Boston

The American Wrestling Association stepped in at the Garden when Ray Fabiani, [illegible], faded out of the picture. This organization arranged the finish mat bout, best two falls out of three, between Gus Sonnenberg and "Gentleman" Jack Washburn which will be held a week from tonight.

Bowser will take over the promotion of this match. He believes it is the best bout that could be arranged at this time.

Sonnenberg and Washburn are backed up by a tussle between Nick Lutze and Matros Kirilenko and Charley Strack and Benny Ginsberg.

The return of Bowser to the Garden will boom wrestling here. Bowser promoted the mat contests for two years at the Garden, but was finally forced out by the Ray Fabian group. This outfit could not compete successfully with Bowser, who operated the Arena. The result was they withdrew to Philadelphia.

The American Wrestling Association, which has the leading wrestling men in the country in its membership, then took over the Garden wrestling. This organization turned over its lease to Bowser in the belief he was the only person who could successfully promote wrestling shows at the Garden.

Callahan at 142 pounds

ANDY CALLAHAN will weigh 142 pounds for his 12-round welterweight championship battle with Lou Brouillard at the Boston Garden on October 7. Callahan weighed 141½ pounds when he knocked out Young Lefty at Fall River recently.

Under the terms of the contracts on file at the office of the boxing commission in the State House, Brouillard must enter the ring at 147 pounds. This is the official weight for the welterweight class in Massachusetts. Lou can make this poundage without any difficulty.

Callahan will not attempt to get above 142 pounds. He realizes that this is his best fighting notch, and that he would handicap himself if he tried to build up to 145 to 147 pounds.

Callahan is one of the most rugged fighters in the world. I have seen him knock heavyweights cold in training bouts. A mere five pound weight handicap in Brouillard's favor won't worry slugging Andy.

TWI SERIES TO OPEN SUNDAY

The championship series for the Suburban Twi title starts Sunday afternoon when North Cambridge K. C. plays Hyde Shoe in a double-header at Russell field, North Cambridge. The twin-bill starts at 1:30. Cantab Caseys defeated Revere K. C., first half runner-up, in a play-off series to determine the club to face Hyde.

Al Blanche will toss for Hyde in the first game, opposing Frank Hallissey.

EZMUNT TAKES PLAUSSE' B. C. LINE BERTH

Ike Ezmunt, the Salem boy who blocked so many punts last year, will take the tackle place of Henry Plausse for the next few days, according to Joe McKenney of the Boston College eleven. Plausse has a sprained muscle.

Bill Keliher's freshman forces will try their football on the varsity tomorrow morning on the new Almuni Field.

Bill Boehner, the new frosh backfield coach, sent his yearling charges through a long passing and kicking drill yesterday, and will continue this afternoon.

The work of Pete Chesnulevich and Johnny Freitas, together with Bobby Curran in the scrimmages of the past few days, indicates that the new Eagle backfield is going to be fast and smart.

McKenney intends to cut the rest of his squad by picking only a fourth team from the 30 odd candidates he has sifted from the varsity aspirants.

Johnny O'Lalor, former English high boy and a star on the freshman eleven of two years ago, who has been out of action with a bad shoulder, is once more back with the varsity squad, and will give Taylor and Whalen, varsity guards, a battle. He is a 189-pounder.

DRYS ORGANIZE TO WORK FOR HOOVER

Washington, Sept. 23 (INS).—Four national dry organizations will actively support President Hoover for re-election despite their disapproval of the Republican national platform and the President's own liquor plan, it was disclosed here today.

They are Allied Forces for Prohibition, National Temperance Bureau, Flying Squadron and the Friends Temperance Society.

Other dry organizations of lesser note also will aid the Republican candidate while some of the important dry bodies have declared neutrality, according to dry leaders here.

Declarations of neutrality already have been announced by the national board of strategy, representing 39 dry bodies, and the Anti-Saloon League of America. The Methodist temperance bodies, headed by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and Dr. Clarence True Wilson have declined to support the President.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling of the World Christian Endeavor and the Allied Forces for Prohibition is now speaking in behalf of the President as well as dry candidates for Congress in Ohio.

Death in Chair for Robbery and Attack

Ardmore, Okla., Sept. 23 (AP).—A death sentence faced Albert Ellis, young tenant farmer, today for robbery of the family of John Weber, Ft. Worth (Tex.) bond broker, on a highway, and attacking 13-year-old Joan Weber.

A jury, after deliberating 10 hours, returned a verdict convicting Ellis of robbery with firearms and condemning him to die in the electric chair.

Plane 21,000 Feet Aloft Studies Cosmic Rays

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 23 (AP).—Dr. Robert A. Millikan, noted physicist of Pasadena, Cal., sought new information of the mysterious cosmic ray 21,000 feet above here.

Maj. R. G. Breene, of the Washington National Guard, in an army observation plane took up a special device to record reception of the rays. The flight required 4 hours and 37 minutes.

Dr. Millikan hopes to ascertain what, if any, effect the magnetic pole has on the descent of the rays, which seem to shoot toward the earth from some unknown source. The recording instrument, sheathed in lead to keep out any but cosmic rays, contains a photographic film on which rays make recordings.

CURLEY ON WAY TO NEBRASKA

Mayor Curley today was enroute from Denver to Omaha, Neb., after a series of receptions on his speaking tour for Governor Roosevelt.

He is scheduled for an address tonight in Omaha that is expected to draw thousands.

The Denver receptions included fetes of Mayor H. H. Begole, the combined membership of the Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club, Knights of Columbus, Foresters and Democratic organizations. At another function he addressed more than 1000 Democrats and then attended a reception by veterans.

At the conclusion of a 40-minute speech he was applauded for 10 minutes and then consented to continue his speech for 15 minutes.

NORRIS LAUDS ROOSEVELT AS TRUST'S FOE

McCook, Neb., Sept. 23 (AP).—Senator G. W. Norris, upon his return home last night, said the public utility policy outlined by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in a recent presidential campaign address would "put the power trust out of business."

The senior Nebraska Senator said he would remain here until after the November election.

Norris, a Republican, but who has given his support to Gov. Roosevelt, Democrat, said he would not make a campaign speech nor discuss politics at the Roosevelt meeting here September 26. Norris said he expected only to introduce the Democratic candidate.

Regarding the utility issue the senator said:

"I think Gov. Roosevelt was clear in his position on the question. His speech shows he stands with the people.

"It puts the position of the two candidates clearly before the people, for Hoover represents the power trust idea."

Everett Gets Loan to Pay Employes

Everett city workers will receive their back pay tomorrow and Saturday as a result of a loan which the city has negotiated with New York bankers. The new loan is for $300,000.

Mayor Michael C. O'Neil expects to maintain regular pay days until the close of the current year.

How Nominees Stand In Nation-Wide Poll

Washington, Sept. 23—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nationwide Presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

It also shows the majority each candidate has in each State in which he is leading.

In addition, it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each State, as compared with the last preceding report from the State. These State reports are usually a week apart.

The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each State where he has improved his position, as compared with the last preceding report from that State.

ROOSEVELT ADDS TO LEAD

By COLE E. MORGAN

Washington, Sept. 23 (US)—Governor Roosevelt more firmly tightened his grip today on the electoral votes of Illinois and at the same time strengthened his chances to win the doubtful states of Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

In each of these five states he scored substantial gains in new returns recorded in the nationwide postcard presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

For two successive weeks the Democratic nominee has made inroads into the majority President Hoover acquired in Ohio with the turn of the month. That state is now getting down to the point where Roosevelt may recover it as the campaign swings into October.

The surprising thing in this sector is the consistency with which Roosevelt continues to add to his majorities in the traditionally Republican states of Michigan and Pennsylvania. In both of these states in this week's new returns he made larger gains than he scored in the normally doubtful states of Ohio and Indiana.

Of the five states treated in the new tabulation, Illinois stands out alone as definitely safe for Roosevelt. From present indications the other four states will continue doubtful, perhaps until election day. On the whole, however, Roosevelt at this time holds a decided advantage in this highly industrial section.

HOOVER LEADS DIGEST POLL

President Hoover has a slight lead over Gov. Roosevelt in the first returns of The Literary Digest's 20,000,000-ballot Nation wide "straw" poll.

Of the 60,327 ballots returned Hoover has 28,133 votes and Roosevelt 27,654.

Of the five States reported in this initial return Hoover is shown leading in Indiana and New York. Roosevelt is ahead in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

An analysis of "how the same voters voted in 1928" shows that Roosevelt is receiving 33.51 per cent of his strength from those who voted Republican four years ago, while 14 percent of his total balloting comes from the Democratic voters in the last presidential election.

The tabulation shows Hoover obtaining 81.03 percent of his total votes from those who voted for him in 1928 with a gain of only 6.16 percent from the Democratic ranks.

A startling shift is indicated in Pennsylvania, where [illegible] 46.44 per cent of the [illegible] in that State comes from former Republicans.

Harking Back!

[illegible] helps us hark back to 20 years ago when . . . You couldn't run a movie longer than 15 minutes at a time . . . Because of protecting your eyes [illegible]

What a Ride!

When it took two hours by trolley to go from Park st. to Newton Corner . . . When there was not a theater on Massachusetts ave. . . . When dancing fool Bill Robinson was known as "Bo" Jangles as he tipped his toes about Boston . . . When the National League club used to play on Walpole st. and a fly to right field was a home run! . . . When women ranted and raved as they jumped every part to see at the Colonial Theater to see the [illegible] Don [illegible] in "The Chocolate Soldier" . . . When everyone had to bend down and crank their own autos by hand . . . When Jacques Renard went to dances borrowing the fact that he'd never been given a "break" . . . When Joseph Sattler opened the new Court Theater with "When Dreams Come True" on the corner where the Statler Hotel now stands . . . [illegible] Park sq., a vacant lot which housed circuses every year . . . When [illegible] was an usher at the [illegible] Theater . . . When [illegible] was [illegible] the Brockton Fair, was a ballyist . . . When [illegible] had an office on Tremont st. . . . Twenty years ago when [illegible] had a [illegible] st. . . . When the late "Pop" White was one of Boston's big Men . . . Before Warren [illegible] went to Vermont . . . And when the Rexford Hotel was the popular rendezvous for actors . . . And two other popular professional hostelries were the Richwood and Hollis.

Two Survivors—

Of all [illegible] 20 years ago [illegible] they are Vic [illegible] of the Orpheum and Al [illegible] [illegible] Quigley's book- [illegible]

Remember back when "[illegible]" . . . "My Wife's Gone to the Country" . . . "Alexander's Ragtime Band" . . . "Everybody's Doing It" . . . "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" . . . and "Come Josephine in My Flying Machine" were the hit tunes of the times!

Clive Brings the Gallery Crowds

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

What most of the thoroughbreds talked about in the happier days of an opulent drama was the gallery. With the [illegible] decline of the arts, as these people understood them, the [illegible] toppled by the [illegible]. The gallery in the theaters became just empty [illegible]. And there was [illegible] the growing empt[illegible] without earnest pro[illegible] no honest drama [illegible] to enjoy any [illegible] of life beyond an [illegible] to Mr. Clive's al[illegible] [illegible] play.

* * *

[illegible] Mr. [illegible] the Copley [illegible] seem to be [illegible]. The gallery has [illegible] the Copley, which is one of the brightest [illegible] of a season already pretty well [illegible] but with nothing much to brag about in [illegible] turn of Mr. [illegible]

E. E. Clive [illegible] performances [illegible] He had been the [illegible] earnest [illegible] of [illegible] and had [illegible] Mr. Clive with neither money nor [illegible] picked up the [illegible] Henry Jewett's [illegible] and [illegible] on two substantial feet [illegible] the first [illegible]

* * *

Later—years afterward—as is the usual custom, E. E. Clive fell into evil ways. He had created for Boston the most effective repertory organization the town had ever known. He even waxed fat and careless on this easy road to success. To most of his most ardent disciples it was a superabundance of the English mystery drama which wore Clive down to his last despairing nickel. Others, more intimately commercial and perhaps more generous in the ways of the flesh, have ascribed the Clive departure from the Copley as just another phase of universal depression. The individual may make his own selection. No matter how you view it, Mr. Clive paraded out of his favorite playhouse with colors flying.

* * *

[illegible] the return. The [illegible] again takes his [illegible] the famous retreat. If [illegible] was strictly [illegible] you could say that [illegible] brother once [illegible] the Family Fire[illegible]. Of course there is nothing of the [illegible] in the Copley except a company of actors doing its best in one of the minor but still more interesting Edgar Wallace [illegible]. What chiefly affects the [illegible] of events [illegible] is the E. E. C[illegible] to those who might have [illegible] him but who [illegible] greeted his return [illegible] the [illegible] performances.

* * *

[illegible] already [illegible]. The [illegible] week at the [illegible] of Mr. Clive [illegible] performances. While there has been no fatted calf to greet him, Mr. Clive has with only the simple [illegible] of the actor kept the playhouse safely occupied by paying customers. More than that he has coaxed the less affluent of drama admirers into the gallery.

* * *

It is an ancient axiom of the theater that any attraction which [illegible] a healthy gallery must be a good show. The first floor—the orchestra—may upon a performance be packed with passes representing friends of the management. Not the gallery, however. There in its own peculiar [illegible] is discovered the life and [illegible] of any play. Mr. Clive, [illegible] return, may not have expected any stirring upstairs response to the arts he so quaintly [illegible]. [illegible] he seem to have [illegible]. And "The Squeaker" [illegible] for another [illegible] comedy [illegible] by [illegible] the [illegible] Mr. Clive car[illegible] his [illegible]

Interesting in connection with the Balinese film, "Isle of Paradise," now showing at the Fine Arts, is an exhibition of Balinese handiwork brought here by Miss [illegible] one of the [illegible] patrons. The exhibition consists of objects which she secured in Bali during a trip last year and includes Balinese puppets, a head dress, sarangs, offering basket earrings, a musical instrument, [illegible] a [illegible] form of [illegible] a carved coconut [illegible] temple carvings [illegible] and other [illegible]. Yankeeland Son Rises to Be ACE FILM DIRECTOR

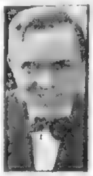
Russell Mack, Providence Boy, Masters His Art on Screen

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

From Providence newspaperman Russell Mack has stepped up to be one of Hollywood's verdest directors. His name has come to be a label of screen excellence. And in cinematic humor he tops them all. So when the direction of "Once in a Lifetime," which made a merry play on the stage, was turned over to him, Hollywood did exactly the right thing. So the film, coming to RKO-Keith's tomorrow, may be expected even to exceed the humors of the footlight comedy.



Russell Mack

Putting the motion into motion pictures—most talkies have sadly lacked action—is this expert's particular [illegible] has been [illegible] his [illegible] into [illegible] [illegible] as no [illegible] doesn't mean [illegible] in the straight [illegible]. On the contrary, he has a [illegible] for expressing emotion, suggesting motive and [illegible] here and there, and [illegible] the imagination. [illegible] of his sequences have been [illegible]

[illegible] Mack is the son of Fred Mack, veteran newspaperman [illegible] in the Hearst [illegible] Rhode Island. Fred, being bred to the ink and typewriter, wished his son to follow [illegible]. Russell began in [illegible] but few [illegible] at a [illegible] when he suddenly found [illegible] stage talent. He did [illegible]le time, and then big time, in vaudeville; slanted off to the "legit" and became star comedian of Broadway shows.

One thing we can say for Russell Mack which cannot be said of many movie directors—he has never done a slipshod task, but has by his direction enhanced every picture he tackled. To us, personally, his name on a picture is an appetizer: we know we're going to see sterling cinema. Also, he was one of the first at Hollywood to see that over-dialoguing paralyzed films, until the motion in time was almost choked out of the talkies. Mack has always stood for camera action, and plenty of it. He first realized that "canned" drama is not motion picture; he has made motion pictures always.

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

Broadway Merry-Go-Round

Here we go, ladies and gents, on our weekly merry-go-round. The town is getting gayer and from now on things ought to be popping right along. Manhattan will dance this season to the music of Paul Whiteman at the Biltmore, George Olsen at the New Yorker, Jack Denny at the Waldorf, Guy Lombardo at the Roosevelt, and probably Rudy Vallee at the Park Central. At the Paramount Grill there will be Ozzie Nelson and at the Hollywood Isham Jones. Barney Gallant is reopening his famous Village Nut Club with Eddie Elkins leading the orchestra. At the Central Park Casino, Eddie Duchin will continue. Both El Patio and El Garron reopen within the fortnite, and the once snooty Lido becomes the something less than snooty but perhaps, by virtue of that, much gayer, Lido Gardens. I know of at least six speaks which will open within the next two weeks and although the producers are shaking their heads and predicting the end of the theater, the list of prospective arrivals swell daily and everything seems hotsy-totsy on the surface for a lively sesaon. And now look over there. Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer—still happy. As you recall, on Friday I told you he had delayed his marriage, but the other lads refused to believe it and married him off on Saturday and here it is Friday as you read this and still he's not married to the lovely Martha Marston, and Tracy's only explanation is "The marriage has been delayed."

I call your attention to that curly-locked woman. That's Marjorie E. Smith, an ex-newspaper gal, who reformed and wrote a novel called "No Bed of Roses," which yielded her heavy royalties. And here she is back from Russia, writing another novel. I remember the day Ryan Walker, art director of the now defunct Evening Tab, eloped with Marjorie, and the next day, when I got through congratulating him, he beamed and said, "Louie, now I'll live to be 90—and I'll be young until I'm dead." Well, Marjorie Smith is back from Russia, but Ryan Walker isn't, for he died there—died there in April, and I didn't know about it until yesterday. There's a pang in my heart, for I liked the fellow and I loved him for a flattering picture he drew of me once—it didn't look anything like me and I told him so. He said, "Louie, anyone with a little drawing talent can draw you as you look—you're an easy subject with that big nose of yours—but I've drawn you as you are—I've drawn your soul." As I say, it was a very flattering portrait.

There's no definite time or date when you ride on this merry-go-round and so now, for no reason at all, here it is Monday night after 11 o'clock and at 45th and Broadway, we see a nice-looking chap, well dressed, conversing with a newspaperman. George Jean Nathan, it is—and what he has to say should be interesting, although it may concern only the weather, which can be interesting, too, they tell me. We shift our gaze one block farther, at 46th—a minute later—and there stands a slim, nice-looking girl in chic attire, and with her a stocky fellow wearing glasses. They hail a cab. Amelia Earhart and George Putnam, her husband. A minute later, a block farther—47th st. and Broadway now—very calmly surveying the passing crowds, Johnny Dundee, toothpick in mouth. And still another block farther—48th st.—hatless, his hands gesticulating wildly a reddish-haired youth talking excitedly to a group of three or four people, Sammy Cohen. So there you are within four blocks—within four minutes—five interesting individuals of Manhattan, Nathan, the satirist—Earhart, the flyer—Putnam, the publisher—Dundee, the pugilist—Cohen, the comedian.

I needn't tell you, ladies and gents, who that well-built lad is—that fellow walking past with brisk steps at 50th St. and Seventh Ave. William Harrison Dempsey, otherwise and affectionately known as Jack Dempsey. That funny little frown creases his brow and if you didn't know him you might think the worries of the entire world afflict him, but, as a matter of fact, the chap has an infinite capacity for enjoying himself and worries very little. An interesting career he's had, this lad who started out as a hobo and might have remained a hobo except for the magic of two powerful fists. That's all he had, but they brought him the heavyweight championship of the world—which, of course, is not to be marveled at, considering the fists—but that they also made him a movie actor and a stage actor, a writer of magazine articles (with the help of ghosts), a hotel owner and for a time the husband of one of the beauties of Hollywood—that is the marvel of the modern age. Now who would ever have imagined that one pair of sturdy fists could have brought all that about?

A refreshing fellow, that Bob Hope—gayest of the gay comedians who keep the "Ballyhoo" show moving. Of course, most of his lines were written by clever fellows—but there's something in the way you deliver lines that either puts you across or doesn't. It's an old tale of the theater, what I am about to tell you—it'll always be old and always new. Bob Hope's mother is dying. Every night the fellow goes on and plays the merry buffoon on the stage, and when the show is over he telephones out to Cleveland, Ohio, to find out whether she's still alive. The old "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" theme. And now consider Georgie Price. Going great guns, the fellow is, thanks to the radio. Give him credit for his persistency. The bottom dropped out for George—after having been a successful vaude comedian. But he had an idea and for a year and a half he sat patiently in the offices of the broadcasting artists' bureau—from 9 in the morning until late in the afternoon. And now look at the guy!

And if I don't reveal the name of that dignified gentleman, you'll probably understand. An author—at one time called the uncrowned king of Haiti—10,000 natives worked for him there. Brother of a famous and prolific playwright. Brother of one of the chief executives of one of the largest utilities in the world. Brother of the head of one of the largest concerns in the world. Member of a remarkable family. Will you believe me, when I tell you he's destitute—and that he's somewhere up in Connecticut working as a handyman for his board? It's almost unbelievable—particularly if you know whom I meant. And look, there's Morris Gest. Still wearing that black flappy hat, that black flowing windsor tie. But the old exuberance is missing. The enthusiasm is gone. He moves from group to group—this is the opening of "Lilly Turner" at the Morosco—and his friends greet him cordially. But I wonder if there doesn't pass through his mind, the days of his great theatrical triumphs—the days when he was hailed as a genius of the theater—when even the glamor surrounding the name of his father-in-law, David Belasco, couldn't obscure the glamor of his own name?

Anybody on Broadway will tell you that it pays to be beautiful—but not to be beautiful and have brains—because beauty with brains is ambitious, whereas mere beauty is satisfied to marry wealth and let it go at that. Personally, I don't hold with that theory, because I have just heard about two good-looking little gals I used to see nightly in the old Club Abbey—June Rogers and Florence Walker, and I remember them as sensible enough kids and wondered what would become of them. And here, at this late date, I learn. Two friends—men of wealth—both from Florida—came into the club one night and one took a fancy to June and the other to Florence and they did right by the gals, they married them. Now June has a palatial home in Florida and Florence has a palatial home in Florida, and in addition June has a baby, which may not be palatial, but it is very satisfactory. Or perhaps it's Florence who has the baby—it doesn't make much difference.

Lee Tracy Will Forsake Films for Six-Month Vacation in Europe

By HARRIET PARSONS

Copyright, 1932, By Universal Service, Inc.

Harriet Parsons

Los Angeles, Sept. 23—Although he could pretty well have his pick of studios to work for and parts to play right now, Actor Lee Tracy is putting his makeup box in moth balls and departing Europewards for six months.

Pretty risky business abandoning a career just when its getting under way. Lee has forged right to the top in the past year. But the memories of producers and fans are sometimes short and six months is a long time.

Universal wants Lee on a long-term contract. Radio has three pictures in mind for him and he has a verbal contract with Broadway Producer Sam Harris for a play. Nevertheless, Tracy, who has made nine pictures in 10 months and is thoroughly tired, is going to desert Hollywood as soon as he finishes "Phantom Fame." He'll do the Harris show when he gets back.

Cooper to be Starred

Remember that spectacular bit in "Wings" which brought Gary Cooper forcibly to the attention of the movie-going public? It was only a small suppporting role—Dick Arlen and Buddy Rogers had the choice parts—but the long, lanky Cooper made it unforgettable. Now Gary will star in a film by the same writer who penned "Wings." Story is "Fly On," by John Monk Saunders and Paramount will use it as a Cooper vehicle. Incidentally, those three musketeers, Gary, Mary Pickford and Countess Frasso, decided on the spur of the moment to make an air jaunt to New York and made reservations for today at the United airport. They were still trying to make up their minds yesterday whether to use the tickets or not.

This and That

Tom Douglas added to cast of M. H. Hoffman's "Guilty or Not Guilty," which will bring Betty Compson back to the screen after an extended absence. Leon Gordon is at M-G-M to work with John Goodrich and Claudine West on the script of "Son Daughter." Theodore (new find) Hecht has been muchly tested for the same picture. George O'Brien's dressing room at Fox is being prettied up for its new occupant, Diana Wynyard. Ditto Sally Eilers' dressing room for Sally Eilers. The Elliott-Nugents are tiny-garmenting in March. Personal to old Massa Stork: They'd like a brother for their two small daughters.

Studio Notes

That much-rumored Connie Cummings-Georgie Raft romance is all news to Connie. Seems she and Georgie lunched together at Paramount while working in "Night After Night," and an engagement was promptly Winchelled. Lew Cody's butler, James, wires to thank me for mentioning him in a story on Lew. And signs himself James Cody. Connie Talmadge and T. Netcher's sepia-hued and efficient Charlie always calls himself "Charlie Netcher."

Hoot Gibson is putting on a huge rodeo at the Texas State Fair. And Paris, of all places, wants Hoot to stage one of his cowboy festivals there. That Zeppo Marx-Phil Berg race, which started as a friendly argument over the respective merits of Zep's Mercedes and Phil's Duesenberg, is assuming amazing proportions. Zep and Phil, besides putting up a grand apiece as a stake, have spent plenty getting the cars stripped for action. Filmfolk are taking sides violently and backing up their opinions with sizable wagers. The race comes off at 5 a. m. Sunday over a 15-mile course at Lake Muroc with famed racing driver Eddie Miller at the wheel of the Duesenberg and Joe Reingel piloting the Mercedes.

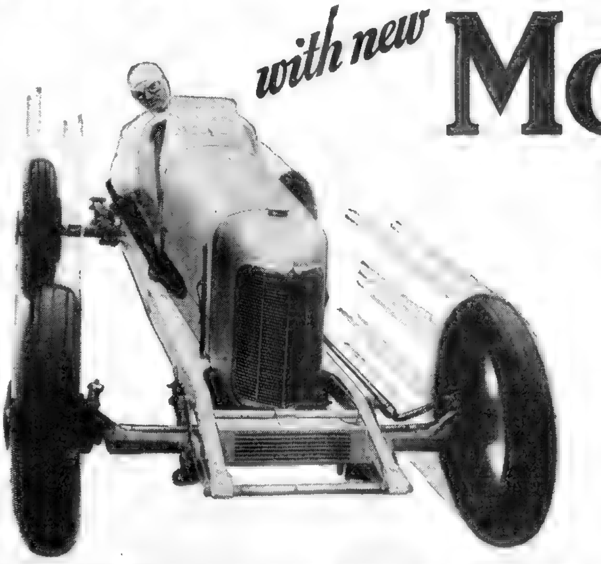
NEW WORLD'S RECORD FOR STAMINA!

with new Mobiloil



as RALPH DE PALMA speeds 800 miles at 112.5 miles per hour

OIL STAMINA, oil economy with new Mobiloil—these have just received new dramatic proof in Ralph de Palma's record-smashing run at Lake Muroc, California. For 800 miles—De Palma's car covered the desert course at terrific speeds, averaging 112 5 miles per hour!

Not only did the new Mobiloil give perfect engine protection at speeds that at times exceeded 120 miles an hour but oil consumption was actually 50% lower than the engineers supervising the test originally estimated!

When taken down, De Palma's engine was in perfect condition. Bearings were tight. Valves clean. And this, after the engine had been turning 6,000 revolutions a minute—100 every second! This was the first time that any car had ever been driven so far, and so fast, with a straight mineral oil.

Though your car will never have to undergo such a test, you are wiser to use a motor oil of proved stamina. Mobiloil protection will make your car last longer. Mobiloil economy will make it cost less to run. Join the millions of motorists who have made the new Mobiloil the world's largest-selling oil. Save money—drain and refill today with new Mobiloil!

TRAINED EXECUTIVES FOR CIVIC PROBLEMS

By B. C. FORBES

Detroit, Sept. 23. Not only politics but adversity, makes strange bed-fellows.

Industrial, financial, mercantile giants formerly much too busy to take real, active, effective part in the administration of civic affairs are now wrestling heroically with community problems, in some cities co-operating closely with politicians whom they used to ignore and despise. The motive in some instances is self-preservation, in others public spiritedness.

Detroit's foremost men of business have been setting a [illegible] example.

Big Economies Effected

Nearly three years ago Ralph Stone, chairman of the Detroit Trust Company, started swinging red lights. He foresaw that it would necessitate wise steering to keep the city off financial rocks. With the approval of the city council, a committee of leading business representatives was organized.

They got busy. Despite occasional obstruction, much was [illegible]. For example, the compiling of the budget was drastically reorganized; unemployment expenditures were reduced from $13,000,000 to $9,500,000; departmental expenses were pared down $12,000,000; unessential public improvements totalling $30,000,000 were held up; salaries were reduced 10 to 20 per cent and even more; unnecessary municipal employes were eliminated.

This [illegible] other leaders in other cities to go about [illegible].

Expenses Reduced 49 Million

Conditions still were bad early this year. Tax delinquencies became serious. Then the biggest men in the city took a hand and [illegible] and Mayor Frank Murphy have since worked in harmonious co-operation.

A. P. Sloan, president of General Motors, became head of a heavyweight committee of industrialists, with B. E. Hutchinson of the Chrysler Corporation as active chairman.

This group of level-headed, matter-of-fact, broad-gauged business leaders is rendering service of incalculable value to Detroit and its people. At a luncheon yesterday the mayor expressed the city's indebtedness to them for their constructive [illegible].

[illegible] balanced budget has been [illegible] a saving of $7,000,000 has been effected in the operating budget and the cost of running the city government, exclusive of fixed charges and [illegible] this fiscal year be $49,000,000, compared with $76,000,000 in 1931, a reduction of more than one [illegible], not including, of course, extraordinary welfare expenditures.

That's a mark for business-like citizens in other harassed, [illegible] cities to shoot at.

OPINION SPLIT ON OUTLOOK FOR STEEL

By FRANK H. MELOON

Opinion is sharply divided on the [illegible] industry. Some [illegible] Wall and State Street [illegible] the future of the [illegible] that there are [illegible] of increased [illegible] and [illegible].

Secretary Chapin [illegible] for cheer in the forward movement of various business and [illegible] this is a topic [illegible].

Roy D. Chapin

It is interesting to note that Secretary Chapin, while he finds [illegible] that a large-scale residential building is [illegible] a shortage [illegible] types of home is in the [illegible]. In some [illegible] where he [illegible] surveys made he finds [illegible] single family houses [illegible] one to three per cent [illegible] four to six per cent [illegible] normal.

Bank clearings, an index of the volume of business, showed [illegible] than normal seasons [illegible] this week. Bradstreet's [illegible] mentions that the income was [illegible] by the [illegible] of mid-month and quarterly dividend, interest and tax payments during the week. Herein may [illegible] he missed [illegible] to the failure of clearings to show the normal increase for it should be plain that [illegible] so many dividends have been omitted, interest charges defaulted and tax payments decrease. Also the pernicious federal check tax was not in operation a year ago and it is well known that [illegible] has led to decreased checking [illegible].

Western Maryland August Net Is Up

New York, Sept. 23—Western Maryland's August net was $[illegible] after charges against $69,[illegible] in August, 1931. Eight months $[illegible] against $[illegible].

This and That

[illegible] the public is not participating in the market [illegible] by the brokers [illegible] Last week [illegible]

F. W. Dodge Corp. reports today the total of new building contracts awarded in New England during the week of Sept. 20 was $2,173,500 [illegible] to the week [illegible] to date which is $2,[illegible].

Gasoline Price Cut Retards Oils

Gasoline price reduction initiated by Standard Oil of New Jersey and followed by other distributors in the same territory confirmed the statement here a week ago that apprehension over the price structure was preventing bullish activities in petroleum shares.

Price Shading Not Unusual at This Time

Although price shading at this season of the year is not [illegible] in the oil industry due to closing of the summer touring season, the development suggests that the industry has been unsuccessful in its efforts at price stabilization. [illegible] the [illegible] ability of producers to keep stocks and new supplies down on a low basis becomes more apparent as the industry enters a period of reduced consumption.

St. Paul Loadings Up

In 21 days of September the St. Paul handled 69,791 revenue freight cars, against 58,692 in the like period last month and [illegible],049 in the like 1931 period.

> Says:
>
> There was enough in the way of unfavorable developments to subdue speculative exuberance, what with wheat going down, dividends being omitted and the I. C. C. holding off on the Baltimore & Ohio loan to refinance next year's maturity.

Confidence Strong

Wall Street's confidence that the market is in an uptrend is still as strong as ever, however. There should be further selling today, but efforts to bring about a rally are likely as soon as this pressure lifts.

Europe continues bullish on our market. Most of their long positions are said to be intact and they have been adding a few rails in the last two days.

Chart Standpoint

From a chart standpoint the market could go down to the 70-71 level on the industrial averages without violating the trend. This would fill in the gap created by Wednesday's bulge.

Reports from sources close to General Motors are that the corporation's sales this month are continuing better than the seasonal trend that developed last month. This explains the scale-buying in duPont.

Car Loadings

Preliminary forecasts indicate car loadings may hit a new peak for the year in tomorrow's report.

Estimates are that loadings for last week rose 90,000 to 100,000 cars over the week before which would bring the total to around 600,000. The previous high was 584,000 cars in the middle of March.

The traffic figures, therefore, seem sufficient reason for the excellent action of the rails. There are other developments, like the four-party merger and the Coolidge commission, that help brighten the background.

N. Y. Central is the big tip in the rails and is certainly acting like a leader. Southern Pacific continues to be well liked, as well as Lackawanna, and good things are heard on Missouri Pacific preferred and bonds.

Dividends

Alaska Juneau Gold Mining Co. declared regular quarterly dividend at 12½ cents, payable Nov. 1 to stock of record Oct. 10.

Towle Manufacturing Company declared usual quarterly dividend of $1.50, payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 24.

UNITED STATES SMELTING REFINING AND MINING COMPANY

The Directors of the United States Smelting Refining and Mining Company have declared a quarterly dividend of [illegible] cents per share on the Preferred Capital Stock, also a dividend of [illegible] cents per share on the Common Capital Stock, both payable on October 15, 1932, to stockholders of record at the close of business October [illegible], 1932.

F. W. BATCHELDER, Treasurer.

RAIL AND STEEL SHARES LEAD MARKET RISE

New York, Sept. 23—Railroad and steel shares led in advances ranging from one to 5 points for many important issues in New York Stock Exchange trading today. The utility group joined the upward procession in the afternoon.

Although the bulls, hopeful of slowly expanding autumn business, bid up prices of their favorite shares, trading was quiet on the upturn.

CREEPING RALLY SEEN

The late trading saw a creeping rally follow a flurry of selling. Issues up around a point or better included Atchison, Auburn Auto, U. S. [illegible]mmon and preferred, American Telephone, Bethlehem, American Can, Air Reduction and Allied Chemical.

Lackawanna soared more than 3 points. Gulf States Steel at the same time was up over 2 points. Neew York Central, very active, was churned around mostly at a fractional advance around the closing gong.

The early trading centred in carrier issues.

Rails commanded particular attention, Lackawanna running up 4 points to a new high and gains of 2 points or better developing in Atchison, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central, Reading, Atlantic Coast Line and Lehigh Valley at the same time.

The steel stocks also lent their shoulder to the advance, most of them gaining substantially. Gulf States jumped 5 points to a new high. U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown at the same time were up 2 or more.

Oils, dampened by gasoline price cuts, were soggy, Standard of New Jersey yielding a point or so. But the main line of industrials and utilities followed the rails and steels. United Aircraft soared 4 points to a new high.

Wall Street awaited with lively interest the outcome of the meeting of eastern trunk line railroad leaders. Expectation was general that the executives were making progress toward reaching an agreement on consolidation in this territory.

LOADINGS REPORTS GOOD

Additional carloadings statements by individual roads lent further support to the hope that tomorrow's figures, covering all class 1 roads for the week ended Sept. 17, would show more than a seasonal gain over the Labor Day week. Estimates of the probable increase ran as high as 80,000 to 100,000 cars.

St. Paul reported for the first 21 days of September total loadings of 69,791 cars against 58,692 in the first three weeks of July, a 19 per cent gain. Santa Fe reported that past gains had been held during the last week. Chicago Northwestern registered a gain for the week of 1002 cars over the previous week.

The trade reviews were encouraging. Bradstreet's Weekly reported a general opinion that business is slowly beginning a fundamental recovery, and said the "seasonal advances, noted recently, continued sustained."

Dun's said there had been no reversal in the recent improving trend, although there was a general leveling of gains this week, with volume spreading in more directions. A hardening of prices was reported which is awakening manufacturers, distributors and consumers to a realization of the changed conditions.

Southern Pacific reported August net operating income of $504,548 compared with $2,574,768 in the same month last year.

New New England Building Is Planned

Following is a list of some of the larger projects now being figured which have not been previously mentioned, according to Brown's Letters, Inc., advance building information, who have plans and specifications on file in their office:

High school addition, Saugus; architect, Kilham, Hopkins & Greeley and Alden C. Loring Associates, Boston. Postoffice, Middlebury, Vt.; private plans. Postoffice, Portland, Me.; private plans.

Alpha Portland Is Calling Back Help

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 23—Birmingham mill of Alpha Portland Cement Co. has resumed, calling 75 men back to work. This makes three mills in operation. Lone Star Cemetn Co. of Albama and Lehigh Portland Cement Co. will each start up a mill during October. Road building and paving in Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi is developing a stead demand for cement.

New Peak for Air Travel Is Reached

New York, Sept. 23—A new peak for air passenger traffic in New York was registered last month when United Air Lines carried 16 per cent more passengers on its scheduled planes from Newark than during July. New York contributed materially to United Air Lines world-wide air line record of August, when 11,888 travelers flew on its coast-to-coast and other routes.

Scrap Steel Up 25c Ton in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh quotations for heavy melting steel have advanced another 25 cents per ton to a 9.75 level. Supplies of scrap at Pittsburgh, it was stated, have not been increased and dealers are having difficulty covering older orders at lower prices. A recent order for 5000 tons brought 110, while a larger tonnage was placed at $9.75.

Employers Lean to Aiding Workers

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

New York, Sept. 23—Hard times have directed the attention of executives to sociological aspects of business.

Perhaps some of the good intentions will be forgotten when the next prosperity phase is reached. To avert that hazard, it would be well to institute plans now for better considered treatment of employes.

For example, workers have found themselves in effect partners in business adversity, forced to accept part of the cost of depression in part time employment, and reduced wage rates. If business is to be equitable, it will want to formulate plans to enable workers to participate more fully in prosperity as well as in adversity.

Behind such a desire is not merely altruism, but a growing recognition of the fact that economic security for all rests on stabilizing the buying power of consumers.

The subject is very close to the hearts of numerous socially minded employers. For example, one medium sized concern, which felt it was forced to cut wages, has quietly decided to reimburse workers for their sacrifices with a bonus at the end of the year, provided the year's operations show a profit.

The executives, not wanting to raise false speculative hopes, have not even announced their intentions to their employes, yet they have made a definite commitment among themselves to do so.

In order to improve morale and to replenish diminished purchasing power, other concerns, which cut wages through necessity or fear, might well consider emulating this policy of making up part of all of the cuts through bonuses out of profits, when, as and if realized.

Richfield Oil Is Loser

New York, Sept. 23—Operating profit of Richfield Oil Co. of California, including Pan American Petroleum Co. and los Angeles Midway Pipe Line, for six months ended June 30 totaled $1,748,249, says report filed with United States district court by Receiver McDuffye. Operating profit is before allowing for depletion, depreciation, loss on properties abandoned or sold and loss of subsidiaries. After these charges net loss was $1,187,144.

BUSINESS RISE IS REPORTED

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Weekly mercantile reviews today said that seasonal recovery in retail and wholesale trade had been sustained this week.

Bradstreet's weekly reported the general opinion in its comments from 55 leading cities was that business is slowly beginning a fundamental recovery.

"That this recovery can only be slow is generally realized; there are still complicated problems for which no satisfactory solutions have been found. But the marked trend away from abject dispair and towards a sober but confident attitude is highly encouraging."

Although retail trade in general is indicated as spotty, said the review, fall goods have met a fairly good demand, especially in department stores. Wholesaling and light manufacturing lines are seasonably busy, although collections have not yet shown marked improvement.

"The general movement toward increased business activity," stated Dun's, "has experienced no reverse, although there was a general leveling of gains this week, with volume spreading in some directions. The rising confidence in fall trade, encouraged by an active consumer response for higher-priced merchandise, has brought about a new faith."

Receivership for 'Frisco Is Denied

St. Louis, Sept. 23 (AP)—Federal Judge C. B. Faris today denied the first of two suits asking a receivership for the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co., known as the Frisco.

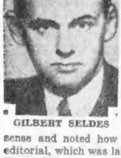
TRUE TALK OF 1929 VERY SUITABLE FOR TODAY

By GILBERT SELDES

The editors of The Business Week must have felt that they were getting a dirty deal back in October, 1929; they were just beginning and business seemed just to be ending. (I can sympathize with them because I published a little book in London trying to explain to the benighted Englanders why America didn't come rushing into the war, and the book was issued the day we came into the war.) The Business Week, however, distinguished itself by keeping its head and by being in 1929 what it has been ever since, a careful and cool survey of what is really happening, unswayed by what we would like to see happening. The reason I mention this now is that, looking back over the vast amount of stuff and nonsense issued at the beginning of the panic, I was struck by a few words of sense and noted how suitable they are to the present. In an editorial, which was later used as an advertisement, The Business Week said:



GILBERT SELDES

Mind Your Own . . .

American business today is paying too much attention of the wrong kind to the stock market . . . speculation in securities has become a national business obsession . . . this speculative complex has grossly distorted the views of the business community and a large part of the general public regarding the nature and conditions of economic prosperity and progress in this country.

"At this time it is especially deplorable that such exaggerated emphasis should be placed upon what is going on in Wall Street. There is no reason why business or the government should act at any time as though security trading or security values are of paramount importance in our economic life.

"The business situation in the United States or any other country is not made or destroyed by conditions in the security market. Prosperity does not depend upon the price of stocks. Progress is not measured by the volume of securities floated or sunk or the amount of money that changes hands in buying and selling them.

Tiddledywinks

"Fundamental conditions of business itself—the creation and exchange of useful goods and services, the advancement of industrial science, the efficiency of business management, the wise use of credit, the expanding employment of labor—in the end determine conditions in the security market . . . Upon them alone the general welfare depends . . .

"Security trading is a large, legitimate and necessary business, but it is only a part, and a relatively small part, of the vast aggregate of American economic activity. There are many others, much more important, and quite as exciting . . . Without them the stock market is merely a game of tiddledywinks, and security prices are simply statistical sawdust.

"If business will mind its own business, the security market will take care of itself."

And Today

I suggest that the same words might well be said today. A few weeks ago the market was going up, up, up, up and everything was going to be fine and dandy. But business conditions went their own way, a little bit up and a little bit down, and altogether unsatisfactory. Then came the election in Maine, which Republicans modestly call "unsettling" because it settled the fate of their candidate. And the market had another of its pretty relapses which brought it into line with general conditions.

There was a Republican, in a great Republican State, who once virtually told his employes that if Bryan were elected cows would cease to give milk; only he put it that he would stop making churns and separators and they would lose their jobs.

Too Many Tickers

And I was told that when Mr. Hoover got ready to announce the moratorium he arranged for special tickers to be installed so that his secretaries could inform him of the reaction in Berlin and Stockholm and Adelaide and Vienna and London and Amsterdam. The story may be an exaggeration, but all through the past three years it has been clear that not only the President but thousands of other leaders have looked to the ticker to tell them how things are going. And the ticker has been a little late with the news, a little misleading and sometimes a liar. The moratorium was, frankly, a flop as a fiscal measure; France held it up, it was belated, anyhow, and it wasn't sufficient. Its great value was a moral one, and moral values are not shown on the ticker.

Maybe the game of tiddledywinks isn't as important as the players think it is. Maybe it ought to be stopped from now until Thanksgiving Day.

CITY OF BOSTON.—In Board of Street Commissioners.—September 23, 1932.—Voted:—That due notice be given, that this Board is of the opinion that in said city, public necessity and convenience require the making of specific repairs in Mishawum Street, Charlestown district, from Main Street to Rutherford Avenue, by laying asphalt macadam in place of present granite block pavement; and that it appoints 12 o'clock M., of October 5, 1932, and the office of this Board, 401 City Hall Annex, as the time and place for a public hearing in the matter. A true copy of an order passed by said Board on said day. Attest: CORNELIUS A. REARDON, Secretary. s23 24 26 27

MY wife, GLADYS FERRELLI, of 26 Valentine St., Cambridge, having left my bed and board, I will not be responsible for any bills contracted by her after September 19, 1932. ALFRED FERRELLI.

Hoover Power Commission Flops Over to Roosevelt's Stand on Utility Control

On the eve of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's address on power at Portland, Ore., the Hoover-appointed Federal Power Commission issued a report urging Federal control of public utility holding companies. This recommendation curiously enough substantially reflected Governor Roosevelt's viewpoint, and is at variance with the spirit of at least Mr. Hoover's earlier coolness to such proposals.

After the members of the commission were appointed under the revised Federal Power Act in 1930, the Senate sought to recall their confirmation. In reaching conclusions consonant with the public interest, the commissioners evidently want to regain their prestige as disinterested public servants.

After a year's investigation, the commission wisely urged that new regulation include full publicity of accounts and records of holding companies, which, by the way, up to the present have been skilfully used as SUBTLE MEANS OF ESCAPING PUBLIC REGULATION.

Pointing to one of the chief leaks, which encourages exploitation of the consumers, the commission indicated that public supervision "to be adequate" would "include in its scope the service organizations of these holding companies, with supervision of all contracts between holding companies and their operating companies, and would include regulations of accounts with requirements providing specifically for the filing of financial and other reports, on prescribed forms with full publicity."

After the revolting collapse of the inflated Insull Holding Company structure, the commission also pointed out:

> "ADEQUATE PUBLIC REGULATION WOULD ALSO INCLUDE SUPERVISION OF THE ISSUE OF SECURITIES TO THE INVESTING PUBLIC."

Pointing out that the holding company enabled power interests to evade State regulation, the commission explained:

> "Analysis of information furnished by 91 holding companies shows that 48 major projects under license to public utilities are subject to control by ten top companies, and that these ten groups serve 12,487 communities with a population of more than 42,000,000."

In the light of these findings, how can Congress, at its next sitting in December, fail to pass constructive legislation to protect the investor, on the one hand, and the consumer of power crossing State lines, on the other, from continued exploitation?

With a Hoover-appointed commission ESPOUSING THE ROOSEVELT POSITION, the issue should no longer be a football of politics.

Perhaps in one of his three forthcoming campaign speeches, President Hoover will make it clear whether he supports his power commission or whether he still clings to his earlier pro-power views.

Although going so far in his acceptance speech as to recommend Federal regulation of interstate power, President Hoover has been silent on holding company abuses, and specifically on Federal regulation of holding companies.

It will be recalled that the National Electric Light Association, chief propagandist agency of the power industry, reprinted in large quantities speeches by Mr. Hoover, as Secretary of Commerce, opposing Federal regulation.

In an address before the San Francisco convention of the National Electric Light Association in June, 1925, Mr. Hoover praised the work of State regulatory commissions, and indicated that he saw no reason for the imposition of "a superior regulation. . . . Nothing could be a more hideous extension of centralization in the Federal government than thus to undermine the State utility commissions and State responsibilities."

Later in his address before the National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners at Washington, Mr. Hoover dealt specifically with the question of regulation, saying:

> "The argument is sometimes used that the power situation is parallel with the railroads, where federal regulation has been found absolutely necessary. This is an illusion. It differs in several profound respects. Power has no such interstate implication as transportation. Furthermore, there has been outrageous exaggeration of the probable extent of interstate power. For economic reasons these power districts will in but few cases reach across State lines."

Mr. Hoover's position was clear until the presidential campaign of 1928 began to approach. Then he BEGAN TO HEDGE a little.

Since power control constitutes one of the overshadowing politico-economic issues of the next administration, PRESIDENT HOOVER SHOULD DELINEATE HIS POSITION ANEW.

Governor Roosevelt's views on the subject are WELL-KNOWN, and were restated in his Portland, Ore., address.

The Public Is Aroused

Huge Votes Show It

If the politicians, in either party, have gone along on the bland assumption that the people are not interested in politics this year, they have had some rude awakenings.

First was Maine, in which 25,000 more votes were cast than in any state election of a presidential year in all its history.

Now comes Massachusetts, in which more than 730,000 men and women went to the polls in a primary election, surpassing all previous records.

And Wisconsin, which saw about 1,000,000 of its citizens in a phenomenal march to the polls, with an extraordinary gain in Democratic ballots, as in California a few weeks before.

We should be happy, and consider ourselves fortunate, in the United States because here the public take it out on misgovernment at the ballot box rather than by resorting to the bloody revolutions of Europe and Latin America.

These signs of extraordinary interest in public affairs indicate that the people are aroused.

They are aroused by high taxes and unforgivable public waste.

They are aroused by the failure of government to provide productive labor for American people while affording succor and relief to the people of foreign countries at the expense of American taxpayers.

They are aroused by the failure to stay at home and take care of our own problems while intermeddling with a long nose into the affairs of the world.

They are aroused by the failure to dispose of prohibition and all its notorious evils and extravagant expenses by weak-kneed politicians who are trying to do a two-step on both sides of that question.

The people of Massachusetts are no different than the people of the other sections of this country. People everywhere are aroused and demand a change.

Crossing the Atlantic

Seen From Deck Chair

AT SEA, Sept. 23—A promenade deck is humanity in a gold fish bowl—twirling round and round with everything magnified. Watching the ceaseless flow from a deck chair is great fun. The honeymoon couple, acutely aware of life's sudden song, burst into quick little steps. The girl who apes Hope Williams!

The chin of the vanquished Russian Princess tilts proudly. She has lost her employment in America and is joining the ever-hopeful expatriates marooned in Paris. The baby vamp in clipped lamb, with a toque of purple, hangs to the arm of a fellow who seems a bit burnt out.

Her usually seductive prattle evokes only mind-wandering monosyllables. My worldly neighbor murmurs: "She won't get her train fare to Paris out of that bozo." This neighbor, incidentally, is keyed to a fixed morbidity.

Naturally, there is a pronounced celluloid-collared Babbitt aboard, bless him. It's his first trip and he booms his enthusiasms. Passing me, he called: "Hi there, Charlie, thinkin' up pieces?" Every stranger to him is Charlie. And he boasts proudly: "My first ferry ride and I board plenty at every meal."

Too, Beauty and the Beast. A saturnine fellow with a whipped looking lady of fragile charm. About her always is an aura of tension. The lounges hum with the story that in a violent rage he hurled, screaming imprecations, all her belongings in a companionway the first night. That sort!

* * *

I'm anxious also to meet the tittupy fellow aboard, who has feathered his nest operating from a Swiss retreat a mail order trickery. For 50 cents (plus postage) he sends a booklet titled: "What Every Bride Should Know." His come-ons receive a cook book. No law has been found to stop him. And he talks with a lisp.

* * *

Ship boxing bouts are usually pink tea interludes but one this morning in the lounge had the cyclonic whizz of a Dempsey-Firpo set-to. At the tap of the gong, two huskies from the boiler room went at it so furiously that it took six ringsiders to tear them apart. One spit out four teeth and the other's eyes were mere sardonic slits. A lady in Havre (and a bit of double crossing) left them nursing a year-old grudge. A ripping young Englishman called it: "Gorgeously chucky, quite."

* * *

Europeans—and Americans who have lived long in France—usually travel second class on trains. To them, first class is a mere vulgar display. Tickets first class from Havre to Paris are $7. Second class, $4. The difference—first class chairs have cute lace doilies. Vive le France!

* * *

Five days out and a ship's routine grows tweedle-de-dee. I often wonder how captains, pursers and lesser officers stand the endless social grind. Aside from official duties they must play host to noonday cocktail parties, evening dinners, gala events and concerts. Somewhere, I have heard (or read) of a retired liner captain who lives utterly alone in some bleak out-country, spending his days in the solitude of the woods and, at night, playing a muted violin to a sprinkle of stars.

* * *

The real truth is, a liner captain's life is almost wholly social. Fogs give him his only escape from the merry-go-round of festivities, for then he must be constantly on the bridge.

O, yes, Billy came to claws with the Deck A black cat, with a snow-white ear, this evening. In the dusk of a corridor alley, the cat struck out at him. Three pin pricks of blood showed on his patent leather nose. Mystified, the hair on his back still has a pronounced fright wig effect. Pretty much a sea dog himself, he has learned a sea cat is something else again.

Listen, World!

For Romantic Ladies

ALL ROMANTIC women should read Ellen Glasgow's new book, "THE SHELTERED LIFE."

It is the story of the woman who believed in Romance and tried to hold on to it all her life. Which is, of course, what every woman secretly tried to do.

Elsie Robinson

Eva Birdsong was a famous South beauty. Fragrant as jasmine, glamorous as moonlight, she moved through the lives and hearts of those who knew her. So lovely was she that men made a symbol of her—a symbol of beauty; detached from all commonplace human requirements. And Eva was graciously willing that they should do so.

For Eva, too, believed in Beauty. Believed that Beauty and Love were all that counted on earth, and that marriage should be a white temple, enshrining them forever.

So, wrapped in beauty and filled with dreams lovely Eva gave herself to that good-looking, amiable scallywag, George Birdsong.

And it certainly was tough on George.

Not that George wasn't duly grateful and impressed. He was. All his life George was grateful; so grateful that he groveled. And all her life Eva, in her lovely way, expected him to grovel.

He could make love. In fact, making love was one of the best and most frequent things George did—a talent to which various ladies of the community could have borne abundant testimony. But those other ladies were—different.

Those other ladies knew that making love was one thing, but Romance was quite another. Making love was just one part of life. You could make love for a while, and then you could forget all about it. And maybe quarrel. Or eat a big dinner. Or play poker. Or go off hunting with the other fellows.

In short, Love didn't interfere with a regular male career or a regular male temperament. It was just part of the show.

BUT ROMANCE WAS A WHOLE SHOW BY ITSELF—A SPECIAL, DE LUXE SHOW, WITH PARTICULAR REQUIREMENTS AND EXTRAORDINARY RULES. IN ORDER TO QUALIFY FOR ROMANCE, YOU HAD TO BE A SPECIAL DE LUXE AND EXTRAORDINARY PERSON YOURSELF.

Which Eva was. Romance was her dish. She looked and felt the part. She desired nothing more than to be George's dream girl all her life.

But George didn't want to be any one thing all his life. He wanted to be a lot of different things, many of them most unromantic. And between the effort to live up to romance and to be himself, poor George had a miserable time of it—and sought relief in many discreditable ways.

All of which Eva bore with beautiful resignation as befitting a romantic heroine, until one day, for the first and last time, Eva snapped out of her rosy dreams and got human. But the result wasn't happy.

And the whole, miserable business could have been saved if Eva could have realized that Life is much more important than Romance; that Life is a moving, burning, ever-changing reality, but Romance is only a pretty dream in a glass case.

Eva could have had Life, and she could have had Love, and she could have kept her George. But she passed them all up and chose Romance; and in so doing raised hell generally.

Yes, romantic ladies should read that book. It's good for what ails marriage.

Just Folks

An Ordinary Golfer's Request

An ordinary golfer, I
Ask no great mention when I die.
Dismiss me briefly. Let me go
Unflattered to the earth below.
If words of praise you seek, use these:
"He never stopped to hunt for tees!"

When I am ready for the grave,
No lengthy speech from friends I crave.
But common were the scores I made,
But common was the golf I played,
Just say, and let me sleep at ease:
"He never stopped to hunt for tees!"

Say neither wood nor celluloid
My sense of values quite destroyed.
I've never wanted kegs and kegs
Filled full with curious little pegs.
A few would satisfy and please;
I've never cared for many tees.

I've never jostled friend aside
Because a crimson peg I spied
And made of speed a fearful burst,
In hopes that I could grab it first.
Say this and end my eulogies:
"He died and left no stock of tees."

Why I Am a Better Republican Than President Hoover

By Hon. George W. Norris

U. S. Senator from Nebraska

(Copyright, 1932, Liberty Publishing Corporation)

(Reprinted in part from the September 24, 1932, issue of Liberty by permission of the editors.)

(This is the second and concluding article of this series. Senator Norris called President Hoover the Janus of Politics in the first article.)

Before this session of Congress convened President Hoover cried aloud that a moratorium (for Europe, not for the farmer) would save us all. . . . But the moratorium saved neither us nor Europe. The hosannas that greeted Mr. Hoover ring false today.

Then Herbert Hoover came out with his Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Once more the cry went out: "This will bring relief, and bring it at once." Once more the people were mesmerized by the false prophet in the White House. Once more they were led to believe that some mysterious power rested in Mr. Hoover and that he could get us over the fence by pulling on our boot straps. . . . But failure and disaster still followed the Hoover Administration. . . .

Two hundred and fifty million dollars which would have come from our debtors across the sea Mr. Hoover waved airily aside for the sake of his precious moratorium.

These governments had the money to pay this interest. One of them had actually paid. But Mr. Hoover, with a generous gesture, returned the money. Money that would have relieved the American taxpayer AIDED THE INTERNATIONAL BANKERS TO PAY PERSONAL INTERNATIONAL OBLIGATIONS.

The law creating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation saddled five hundred million dollars on the taxpayers' back. In addition to that amount it provided for the issuance of one and one-half billion in bonds guaranteed by the Government.

Steadily our load increased. But the vision of relief faded farther and farther into the distance.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation may do a great deal of good. But it is expensive. It commences at the top instead of at the bottom. The theory of Mr. Hoover and those who backed these propositions was that the way to bring prosperity was to loan the money, wrung from our people by taxation, to big financial institutions, and that by making some people prosperous a few of the crumbs of prosperity would trickle down to the common man.

The railroads and the banks got the money. But it has not trickled down. The big financial institutions, aided by Mr. Hoover, were largely the same institutions which were instrumental in overthrowing the chariot of prosperity. . . .

The radicals have been accused of wishing to soak the rich. There is little or no choice between this and the Hoover slogan of "Soak the poor." I believe in "soaking" no one, but if I must make a choice I would not exempt the rich at the expense of the poor.

Herbert Hoover was sold to the country as a "superman." The country now realizes that NOT ONLY THE FEET BUT COLOSSUS ITSELF WAS MADE OF HUMAN CLAY, LIKE THE REST OF US. . . .

Mr. Roosevelt, too, is human. Mr. Roosevelt, too, will make errors. But he has the heart and the vision that Hoover lacks. He understands the plight of the farmer and the interrelation between agriculture and industry. The farmer buys in a protected market and sells in a world market which we cannot control. Whenever we progressives attempted to remedy the wrongs of the farmer we always met with the determined opposition of the combined wealth and the combined political machines of the country. And in every fight against us President Hoover has been the leader.

I expect a more intelligent attitude from Mr. Roosevelt.

How, then, can any patriotic man support Mr. Hoover merely because he is a Republican. . . .

I am the kind of Republican who believes in exposing wrong and evil wherever they fester. I prefer to wash my own dirty linen. If we desire the respect of the people, that is what we must do. Unless we proceed from this principle we forfeit the confidence and respect of honest men and women.

I have often spoken out when I might have been silent. The worst sin that can be committed by a public official is to remain dumb when it is his conscientious duty to speak. If that makes me a bad Republican then I glory in being a bad Republican. I am a bad Republican solely because I believe that PRESIDENT HOOVER'S ATTITUDE TOWARD EVERY VITAL PROBLEM THAT FACES THE REPUBLIC IS WRONG, and that on most of these questions MR. ROOSEVELT IS RIGHT. Wall Street and the power trust will disagree with me. . . .

I detest the spirit of partisanship which places party above country and barters the forgotten rights of the common man for public office. . . . A political party is nothing but an instrumentality for government. There is nothing sacred about it. . . .

When the rank and file of our people realize that a new day will dawn for America. The eagle, emerging once more, will scatter the parrots of party regularity.

Are Their Faces Red?

The police captains of Boston have been asked a series of seven amazing questions by the authorities higher-up. Among the questions are these samples:

> "Do you know of any rackets in connection with which the police do not lift a hand to protect the public?"
>
> "Do you know of any instance in your division where police are in league with the underworld?"
>
> "It is alleged that men are shot down in cold blood for money and that nothing is done to stop these outrages. What have you to say in relation to this?"

The police authorities ought to get wonderfully responsive answers to such questions.

About as much as they could expect to get from the question, "When did you stop beating your wife?"
